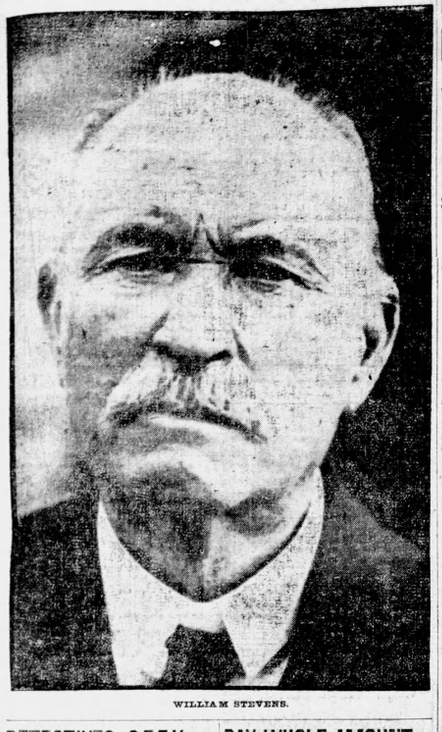
SUSPICION LIFTS FROM SON

FINDS HIS HOME IN ASHES, WIFE AND DAUGHTER DEAD



WILLIAM STEVENS.

STEVENS BOY CAUGHT; FATHER BELIEVES IN HIS SON'S INNOCENCE

Wade Stevens, Arrested in Chattanooga, Is Anxious to Come Back to Atlanta With Detective John Black

SCENE OF DISASTER IS VISITED BY FATHER

After Viewing Charred Remains of Wife and Daughter, Veteran Stood Amid Ashes of Home

With Wade Stevens under arrest by an Atlanta city detective in Chattanooga and due to arrive in Atlanta Thursday afternoon, with William Stevens, head of the household, home from the Confederate reunion and unaware until he arrived in Atlanta that he had suffered any greater loss than that the burning of his house, and with two negroes, one an Indian half-breed, both of whom had worked at the Stevens house, suspected by Mr. Stevens and some of the neighbors, the mystery of the death of Mrs. Sarah C. Stevens and her adopted daughter, Nellie, and the burning of their bodies in their home on the McDonough road Tuesday night seemed to have cleared just a little Thursday afternoon.

Wade Stevens, whose arrest was ordered by the coroner's jury of DeKalb county Wednesday afternoon for suspicion in connection with the mysterious death and burning of Mrs. Sarah C. Stevens and Nellie Stevens, her adopted daughter, was arrested in Chattanooga Thursday morning by C. J. Detective John Black, of Atlanta, and the detective reported to Chief Beavers over long distance telephone, that the youth was anxious to return to Atlanta.

A telegram from Chief Beavers to Detective Black Wednesday afternoon had the foregoing result. The detective was there, as were numrous others from various southern cities, with an eye open for notorious crooks who would flock to a big gathering like th old soldiers' reunion.

Detective Black did not record the details of the capture, it seemed, but merely informed the chief that he had arrested Wade Stevens, and that Wade seemed anxious to come back at once when he heard of the tragedy, and that they would catch a train down from Chattanooga some time during the early afternoon, arriving here perhaps before dark.

BELIEVES SON INNOCENT.

That he believes Wade, his own son, did not kill Mrs. Sallie C. Stevens, his wife, and Nellie Stevens, their adopted daughter, was one of the first utterances of William Stevens, the stricken husband and father, immediately after he arrived Thursday morning from the Confederate reunion at which he had been mingling once more with his old comrades-at-arms in Chattanooga.

Mr. Stevens declared that he was convinced that Wade was in Chattanooga Wednesday morning at about the hour when a terrible conflagration on the McDonough road near Atlanta noticed the smoke from the ashes of the Stevens home.

The landlady whose guest he was at 1166 Roswell avenue, Chattanooga, but whose name he did not remember, told him Wednesday, he said, that she had seen Wade at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning passing on the opposite side of the avenue in front of her house. Wade was with two other boys, she told Mr. Stevens. She knew Wade because he, Wade, had stopped with her previously on a visit to Chattanooga.

The landlady's given name is Mary, remembers Mr. Stevens. His elder son, Ed Stevens, sees by his first wife, lives there, and Wade has stopped there for that reason.

Mr. Stevens stated further that Wade drove him to Atlanta in a buggy last Sunday and on their way in Wade told him that he, Wade, might be in Chattanooga before the reunion was over.

Mr. Stevens asked to see the bodies of his wife and adopted daughter. The gruesome sight of the charred remains moved him profoundly, but he manifested little emotion outwardly. There was strong pathos in the scene—the seventy-year-old veteran of a fearful war, looking down upon the almost incinerated remains of two whom he held dear.

"We've had to do some fighting," said he, "but it's mighty awful to have to die like that."

Mr. Stevens arrived at 10:50 o'clock Thursday morning at the Union depot, but was missed there by the newspaper men and officers who were awaiting him. A few minutes later he appeared

DETECTIVES SEEK CORROBORATION OF CONLEY'S STORY

They Declare That They Are Anxious to Get at the Truth of the Murder Case, Regardless of Who Is Guilty

Little if any credence is placed by the city detectives in the theory of the officials and employes of the National Pencil factory that Mary Phagan was killed by James Conley, the newro sweeper, and that his motive was robbery.

The detectives have accepted as true Conley's second affidavit, in which he swears that he wrote the notes found by Mary Phagan's body, and that he did so about 1 o'clock on the day of the murder, at the dictation of Superintendent Leo M. Frank, who is now under indictment by the grand jury.

However, they are somewhat puzzled by the discrepancies in the time of certai nocurrences as sworn by Conley and testified at the coroner's inquest by other witnesses.

Harry Scott, the Pinkerton detective who is working with the city detectives on the Phagan murder case and who developed the fact that Conley could write, notwithstanding his denials, declares that the shortest route to a complete solution of the mystery is to bring the negro Conley and Superintendent Frank face to face. He says the negro insists that he is anxious and willing to confront Mr. Frank with his story, and that if Mr. Frank and his attorneys agree, they (Conley and Mr. rank) will be brought together to discuss the truth or falsity of the negro's declarations.

Thursday afternoon the detectives will put Conley through another vigorous interrogation, and it is said will question him as if they are convinced that he committed the murder. Failing to bring out any further incriminating admissions from him, they will, it is said, dwell upon what appear to be the weak points in his second affidavit.

SURE HE WROTE NOTES.

The detectives are satisfied that Conley wrote the notes, which he admits writing. They consider the handwriting of these notes identical with specimens written by Conley Wednesday, photographs of which were reproduced in The Journal Wednesday afternoon.

No doubt is entertained by the detectives concerning Conley's admission that he was hiding in the pencil factory on the morning of the murder, for they claim to have corroborated thoroughly from other witnesses certain incidents which occurred at the factory that morning as detailed by Conley. The negro must have been there in order to

PAY WHOLE AMOUNT OF CREMATORY NOW, IS PLAN SUGGESTED

This Seems to Be Only Feasible Way Out of Situation, and Council Members Are Seriously Considering It

After a careful reading by lawyers of the supreme court's decision in the crematory case, it develops that the decision makes a more serious situation than was at first realized.

City Attorney James L. Mayson, who read the decision Thursday morning, says under the decision there are just two things, and only two things, that can be done:

First, the city can pay the whole purchase price of the plant this year, the price being $276,000.

Or, the Destructor company, without any contract or written agreement with the city whatsoever, can go ahead and complete the plant, turn it over to the city, accept $125,000, and take its chances of being paid in the future. This amount, $125,000, is what the budget now carries for the crematory.

While Samuel N. Evins, attorney for the Destructor company, does not say in so many words that the company will be willing to the latter proposition, he does intimate that the risk of such a proposition would be greater than his company would like to assume unless it offered the only possible way out of the situation.

Present indications are that council will try to find enough money to pay the whole purchase price this year, even stopping all special work if necessary.

As the budget already carries $125,000, it will be necessary to raise only $151,000 additional to pay the whole price and thus clear up the situation entirely.

Alderman John S. Candler, early on Thursday morning, before reading the decision, said he would advocate this

COLONEL DRANK ONLY COFFEE DURING WAR

Five Witnesses Testify for Roosevelt in Libel Suit Against Michigan Editor

(By Associated Press.)

MARQUETTE, Mich., May 29.—Five witnesses for Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, including a relative; a former member of the Rough Riders regiment; a former locomotive fireman; a newspaper man and a former judge, testified today in Colonel Roosevelt's suit for libel against George A. Newett, the Ishpeming newspaper owner.

Each of the witnesses asserted that the colonel was only a moderate user of intoxicants.

The substance of the testimony as given by Philip Roosevelt, a young son of the colonel's cousin; Charles Willis Thompson, a New York newspaper man; Andrew A. Abele, a former locomotive fireman; Edwin Emerson, a Cuban Rough Rider campaigner, and A. Z. Blair, a former common pleas judge of Ohio, was:

That during his campaign in Cuba, with the Rough Riders Colonel Roosevelt drank only black coffee and water and never liquor of any kind.

That during his political campaign the colonel drank champagne occasionally and never to excess. That while Colonel Roosevelt kept a large and varied supply of wines at his home, he never indulged in them immoderately.

"He kept a regular gentleman's cellar," Philip Roosevelt said.

Colonel Roosevelt, as usual since the beginning of the hearing, listened with the keenest interest to the witness' denial that he frequently "got drunk" as charged in the editorial published by the defendant.

Charles Willis Thompson, of New York, for nine years a Washington correspondent and "dean of the political writer for a New York newspaper, testified first.

"As a Washington correspondent," he said, "I used to go to the White House to see Mr. Roosevelt. I saw him usually alone, some times in the morning and some times in the afternoon, usually in his office, but some times, when, in order to lose not a minute in his work, he received visitors while lying in the barber chair. I never detected the odor of liquor on his breath, never saw him in the slightest degree under the influence of liquor and never saw his manner in any way changed from its ordinary one."

"Ever go on any trips with him?"

"I was with him on his 11,000-mile swing around the country last year, which lasted a month. I afterward joined him at Mercy hospital, Chicago, when he was shot; stayed there until he went to Oyster Bay, went there with him and stayed there until election. Two weeks after he was shot in Milwaukee he went to New York on two occasions to address large mass meetings, and I went with him and reported them."

SAW HIM CONSTANTLY.

"On these trips did you see much of him?"

"I saw him constantly—all hours of the day and night—and never saw him take a drink or be affected by liquor. Whenever he left the car I followed him.

"Did you ever see him take a drink?"

"Only at dinners of the Gridiron club, when he had a glass of champagne in front of him. He would occasionally

OLD HEROES MARCH TO THE STRAINS OF "DIXIE" IN PARADE

Remnant of Great Army of 600,000, Now Aged and Gray, Pass Though Steets of Chattanooga Thursday

(By Associated Press.)

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 29.—Proudly bearing tattered battle flags dimmed by powder smoke and time, the gray-clad survivors of the Confederate army today marched through streets walled on each side with cheering thousands. Standards borne by cavalrymen almost encountered overhead arches formed by entwined Confederate and United States flags.

Nearly 1,000 of the gray-haired veterans were mounted on the prancing horses of the Eleventh United States cavalry, tendered by Fort Oglethorpe officials and offering another mute testimonial of the burial of the bitterness which characterized the war between the states.

Hundreds of applauding spectators who witnessed the impressive sight were moved to tears by the flood of memories it aroused.

No division appeared in a semblance of its entirety. Only a few stanch survivors were left of the more than 600,000 soldiers who represented the Confederacy in the fiercest struggle of modern times.

FIRMAMENT RENT WITH CHEERS.

From the moment General Bennett H Young, commander-in-chief of the U. C. V.'s, appeared accompanied by his staff, until the last detachment of veterans passed, the firmament was rent with shouting and applause.

General Young's staff was followed by the Eleventh U. S. cavalry band, the survivors of the trans-Mississippi department, the department of northern Virginia, the department of Tennessee, Forrest's cavalry corps and 1,000 mounted veterans.

Interspersed among the different commands were sponsors of the divisions of the United Confederate Veterans, in each instance followed by aged soldiers riding in automobiles. The Richmond Howitzers, Pelham Guards, of Macon, Company D, Alabama national guards, and two companies of Tennessee state militia acted as official military escorts to the veterans.

The ranks of the veterans riding in automobiles were swelled from time to time by those who had believed themselves equal to marching in the parade, but who were unable to stand the trying ordeal.

MANY FELL FROM RANKS.

Many of these staggered along bravely attempting to maintain step with their more vigorous comrades. When they were forced to fall out ready hands were extended by the veterans in the automobiles and amid renewed cheers from the spectators they were hauled aboard to continue the march under less trying conditions.

The trans-Mississippi department was headed by Lieutenant General E. M. Vansandt, of Fort Worth, Tex., commander, and his staff. Following in close formation were the Texas brigades in numerical order headed by General Felix Robertson, the Arkansas

TARIFF DISCRIMINATION FOR U. S. SHIPS DROPPED

Senate Will Drop Five Per Cent Differential on Imports in American-Owned Ships

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Senator Simmons, chairman of the finance committee, definitely announced, after a conference with President Wilson today, that he proposed 5 per cent differential on imports in American owned or controlled vessels would be dropped from the tariff bill in the senate on account of protests from foreign countries.

Senator Simmons also declared that objections of foreign nations to the clause to compel foreign merchants to submit their books to an American agent in cases of disputed valuation, would be met. In both cases the state department holds that protests are justified. The president upheld that view.

Chairman Simmons also took up the president's questions of equalization of duties on raw materials and manufactured products, among them wheat, flour and pig iron. Mr. Simmons declined to discuss the president's views on those points, saying no decision had been reached, but that he had sought Mr. Wilson's ideas and would transmit them to members of the finance committee.

UNDERWOOD OPPOSES.

Chairman Underwood, when asked about the probable action of the house, should the tariff bill come back with an amendment to eliminate the 5 per cent clause, said that personally he favored retention of the provision as one of the ways of building up a merchant marine.

"I believe in discrimination in favor of American ships," said he. "Foreign nations discriminate in favor of their own ships and I do not see why we should not."

Mr. Underwood did not indicate, however, whether there would be any effort to retain the provision if the administration raised strong objection.

Senators on the subcommittee of the finance committee working on the cotton schedule of the Underwood bill are said to be ready to recommend some increases in the house rates.

More than a hundred witnesses from the New England and southern cotton sections are reported to have favorably impressed the senators with their arguments that some of the cuts were too great.

The committee also is expected to recommend some changes in the chemical schedule, among them to be the free listing of certain dyes used in the manufacture of cotton which the house bill has included in the dutiable list.

Senator Stone's subcommittee is still working over te wool and metal schedules. Few changes are looked for in woolen manufactures. Some reductions are known to have been decided upon in the steel schedule. Structural steel will be reduced, while pig iron and ferro-manganese probably will go to the free list.

IMPROVEMENTS ARE LARGELY VOLUNTARY ON COMPANY'S PART

Copenhill to West View, Inman Park-George Av., W. Peach.-So. Pryor, Forrest Av.-Capitol Av. Among Lines Named

FURTHER INFORMATION IS ASKED BY THE COMMISSION

Street Car Company Must Gather Data Which Will Enable Commission to Determine Sufficiency

Improvement in the street car service of the Georgia Railway and Electric company on ten routes during the morning and afternoon rush hours of the day, along with an order for the company to make a monthly report showing an actual count of passengers handled during those hours, the number of cars operated and the number of seats in those cars, is in substance the fencing of the state railroad commission which made its report Thursday afternoon following an executive session that began at 10 o'clock last Tuesday morning.

The report of the commission, as explained by Chairman C. Murphy Candler, carries two separate and distinct changes in the service. One is that which was suggested to the commission by President Arkwright, and the other is ordered by the commission.

The improvements in street car service are in line with The Journal's exclusive forecast made several weeks ago.

The ten routes affected are No. 2, Copenhill to West View; No. 4, Inman Park and Georgia avenue; No. 5, West Peachtree and South Pryor; No. 6, Forrest avenue and Capitol avenue; No. 8, Fair and Marietta; No. 10, Whitehall and Peachtree; No. 17, Decatur main line; No. 18, River; No. 20, College Park, and No. 23, Buckhead. These routes were the ones suggested to the commission by Mr. Arkwright as being the ones where more efficient service was needed especially during the two daily rush hours.

In the order of the commission carrying into effect the voluntary improvements of the company it is ordered that the rush hour period on the Whitehall-Peachtree route be extended.

MUST KEEP RECORD OF PASSENGERS.

Aside from this the commission orders that during the months of June, July, August, September and October of the present year, for two week days in each month, that the company shall show a record of an actual count of the passengers handled during the rush hours, the number of cars operated at that time and the total number of seats at the disposal of the company's patrons. It is further ordered that this count must be made both on the north and south sides.

The orders of the commission are that this increase in service on the lines of the company must go into effect within ten days from this date. The monthly reports of passengers handled during the specified hours are asked that the commission may be in a position to see the effectiveness of the new schedules and be in a position to ask for other improvements that may be considered necessary to keep the service up at a high standard.

The orders of the railroad commission and the agreement on the improved service on the routes mentioned are in accordance with certain correspondence between President Arkwright and Chairman Candler, in which the head of the company voluntarily offered to furnish the commission with certain data explaining to them the exact status of the service of the lines, how it could be best improved and the most feasible manner of making these improvements.

Shortly after this information was in the hands of the chairman, a meeting of the commission was called and the suggestion adopted along with the specified orders of the commission in reference to the Peachtree-Whitehall line and the count of passengers during the rush hours.

IMPROVEMENTS AGREED ON.

JURY DISAGREES AGAIN IN CASE AGAINST GIBSON

N. Y. Lawyer Charged With Slaying Mrs. Rosa Szabo May Get Another Mistrial

(By Associated Press.)

NEWBURGH, N. Y., May 29.—After sixteen hours' deliberation, the jury in the case of Alton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer charged with the murder of Mrs. Rosa Szabo, his client, had reached no agreement at 9 o'clock this morning.

A crowd waited at the court house all night in expectation of hearing a verdict, but as the hours passed without the jury's appearance it became general opinion that another mistrial of the case would be the outcome, as it was last fall.

brigades led by General Thoms Green, the Missouri brigade with their commander, General J. Will Hall, the Oklahoma brigades under command of General D. H. Hailey and the Northwest and Pacific brigades led by General J. F. Reins and General William C. Harrison, respectively.

Next came Lieutenant General Theodore S. Carett, of Norfolk, commander of the Army of Northern Virginia. Brigades in numerical order and their commanders in this section were: Commander General Stith Bolling, Maryland; Commander General A. C. Trippe, of Trippe, N. C.; Commander General Julian S. Carr, South Carolina; Commander General B. S. Teague, West Virginia; Commander Charles S. Peyto.

Lieutenant General George P. Harrison, of Opelika, Ala., commander of the Army of Tennessee, rode at the head of the state divisions in that section. Alabama brigades, headed by General Harvey E. Jones, and Florida brigades, under General W. R. Partridge.

DAVENPORT LEADS GEORGIANS.

Georgia brigade with their leader, General H. A. Davenport. Kentucky brigades, commanded by General W. R. Haldeman; Louisiana brigades, led by General Patrick Henry, and Tennessee brigades, under command of Robert C. Crouch, composed the brigades and commanders in the Army of Tennessee.

What was considered one of the most impressive and inspiring spectacles in the parade formed the rear of the parade. One thousand mounted veterans preceded by a cavalry corps of the late General Nathan Bradford Forrest, who won the name of the "Wizard of the Saddle," during the war between the states, composed this creation. The cavalry corps was mounted on its own horses and is said to be the only organized corps of Forrest cavalrymen in the country. General H. A. Taylor commanded.

The veterans for the first time since the war between the states were mounted on United States cavalry horses. Many humorous scenes were enacted when the members of the Eleventh U. S. cavalry turned over their mounts to the aged veterans. Some of the soldiers had to be assisted into the saddle, but all maintained their seats during the parade, despite the capers of the prancing steeds.

Veterans representing every Confederate state gathered early today to participate in their twenty-third annual street parade. Ideal weather conditions prevailed.

Business sessions of the veterans and other organizations were concluded yesterday and this morning.

JACKSONVILLE CHOSEN.

The veterans selected Jacksonville, Fla., as their next meeting place and re-elected General Young and his departmental officers.

More than 1,000 school children will take part in the presentation of the "Pied Piper of Hamelin," for the veterans this afternoon. The reunion will be closed with a grand ball tendered to the Sons of Confederate Veterans at the General Bennett H. Young pavilion tonight.

The departmental commanders re-elected are Lieutenant General Theodore S. Garnett, of Norfolk, Va., commander of the Army of North Virginia; Lieutenant General George P. Harrison, of Opelika, Ala., commander of the Army of Tennessee, and Lieutenant General K. M. Vanandt, of Fort Worth, commander of the Trans-Mississippi department.

RANKS GRADUALLY THINNING.

"Natural and unavoidable conditions," have, during the past year, depleted to an unusual degree the ranks of the United Confederate Veterans, causing a proportionate decrease in revenue, according to the annual report of Major General William E. Mickle, of New Orleans, adjutant general and chief of staff, submitted at the organization's annual reunion here last night.

The report was in part as follows:

"I have not been inclined in my annual reports for several years past to take a very cheering view of the future of this association. I have predicted year after year, a speedy decline in the income, based on natural and unavoidable conditions. In 1912 I regret to say, a most decided falling off in receipts from both officers (which I do not understand) and from camps, must be noted. The amount realized from these two sources in 1911 was $8,627, and for 1912 $4,930.

"It is a source of pleasure that I am able to say that at no period in the history of the association has such a large percentage of camps paid their dues as in 1913. The amounts, of course, are smaller, but the number paying is far in excess of any preceding year.

"I cannot think that those holding commissions do not realize the burden of responsibility resting on their shoulders.

"For some cause, however, their responses for the past year have not been so ready nor so numerous as formerly. Holding all the honors the association can bestow, they should manifest their affection and patriotism in a way more beneficial to the organization.

ELEVEN NEW CAMPS.

"I am pleased to say that there are yet a few old Confederates not in U. C. V. who desire to become connected with this glorious federation, and during the past year there have been eleven charters issued to new camps.

"For the reasons stated in the past, and which will ever prevail, forty camps have forfeited charters.

"The following table will show the present condition:

"Summary of camps by divisions:

PROMINENT AMONG DEAD.

"I reported last year that I had five volumes of the minutes bound, and one volume of orders. Since I have got out a second volume of orders, and an additional volume of minutes will be ready in the coming winter.

"I am proud to be able to state that these volumes are being purchased by libraries of the north. No announcement to the members of this organization should elicit a greater feeling of satisfaction than this. I have made examination of the volumes on the shelves in some libraries, and was pleased to observe that they bore unmistakable evidence of having been read.

"The grim reaper has called during the past twelve months for his customary toll of veterans, among whom may be mentioned G. W. C. Lee, son of General Robert E. GEN. EVANS' PORTRAIT IS READY FOR THE CAPITOL

A portrait of the late General Clement A. Evans has been painted for the state by Mrs. J. R. Gregory, the Atlanta artist, and will be hung in the state capitol building some time Friday.

The portrait is of heroic size, and has received favorable commen tfrom every one who has viewed it. During the recent Presbyterian assembly several veterans of the federal army, who were delegates, made it a special point to visit t hartist's studio to see the painting, and each one was struck by the likeness portrayed on the canvas. As one of them said, "It is a grand portrait of a grand old man."

Woman's Beauty is Based on Health

To Have Health, Bowel Movement is Absolutely Necessary---How Best to Obtain it

If woman's beauty depended upon cosmetics every woman would be a picture of loveliness. But beauty lies deeper than that. It lies in health. In the majority of cases the basis of health, and the cause of sickness, can be traced to the action of the bowels.

The headaches, the lassitude, the sallow skin and the lusterless eyes are usually due to constipation. So many things that women do habitually conduce to this trouble. They do not eat carefully, they eat indigestible foods because the foods are served daintily and they do not exercise enough. But whatever the particular cause may be it is important that the condition should be corrected.

An ideal remedy for women, and one especially suited to their delicate requirements, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which thousands of women endorse highly. Mrs. Jennie Snedeker, 1041 West Monroe St., Chicago, testifies that she is "cured of grave stomach and bowel troubles by using Syrup Pepsin and without the aid of a doctor or any other medicine." All the family can use Syrup Pepsin, for thousands of mothers give it to babies and children. It is also admirably suited to the requirements of elderly peoplpe, in fact to all who by reason of age or infirmity cannot stand harsh salts, cathartics, pills or purgatives. These should always be avoided for at best their effect is only for that day, while a genuine remedy like Syrup Pepsin acts mildly but permanently.

MRS. JENNIE SNEDEKER

It can be conveniently obtained at any drug store at fifty cents or one dollar a bottle. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded. You will find it gentle in action, pleasant in taste, and free from griping, and its tonic properties have a distinct value to women. It is the most widely used laxative-tonic in America today and thousands of families are now never without it.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

Mrs. R. C. Moore, 106 Sharer street, San Antonio, Texas, who has been prominent as a school teacher, writes:

"It gives me pleasure to testify to the merits of Peruna.

"I suffered from general debility, nervous prostration and a severe cough. Peruna cured me."

Stomach and Liver Trouble.

Mrs. M. P. Curry, P. O. Box 615 Petersburg, Ill., writes:

"I have been troubled with internal catarrh since my childhood and was sick in bed for three months. I had pains all through me. When I was able to get up I was so weak and thin that I could hardly walk. What I ate disagreed with me. I had stomach and liver trouble and my feet and limbs were swollen so I could scarcely drag around.

"I took Peruna and it has done wonders for me. My cure was a surprise to my friends for they never expected to see me well again. I just took two bottles of Peruna after doctoring for five months and growing worse all the time."

Persons who object to liquid medicines can now obtain Peruna Tablets. (Advt.)

WHAT THE RIGHT TO TEN ANSWERS MEANS TO YOU.

From the number of queries the Campaign Editor is still receiving on the question of submitting ten answers there must be a great many Journal readers who still think that the lower they hold the number of answers the better chance they have of winning a prize.

The history of all Booklovers' Campaigns prove that it is those who use plenty of answers who carry off the big prizes and most of the prizes worth while.

Take your own Journal campaign of last year and the winner of the first gold prize used 554 answers, the second 515 and the third 661, and in the line down to the $300 piano they ran 544, 518, 502, 558 and 428, so don't hold down low on answers unless you want to eliminate yourself from the prize winning list entirely, or perhaps take home a box of candy.

Submit the full result of your skill and ingenuity, especially when you can do it without buying a lot of extra pictures and coupons. If you secure The Journal Answer Book you will only need one of each picture, yet you can submit the full ten answers to each picture or 700 in all. Increase your chances of winning by getting an Answer Book today.

ELECTIONS HELD BY UNIVERSITY STUDENTS

Officers of Various Student Organizations Named for 1913-1914 Session

ATHENS, Ga., May 29.—Wednesday was election day at the University of Georgia. Besides two other elections of minor importance, the annual choice made under the auspices of the Athletic association for its own officers, for the editor of the college weekly, and the managerial positions on the football and baseball teams were announced.

The officers of the association, to which a successful football and baseball season brought a year of unparalleled financial prosperity, will be, for the coming year, president, J. A. Johnson; vice president, G. H. Adams, and secretary and treasurer, T. C. Edwards.

The "Red and Black," the well known college weekly of the university, will have on its editorial staff F. A. Holden, editor-in-chief; A. Harford, assistant editor; Ray Fort, athletic editor; Phillips Abbot, exchange editor; W. R. Hastings, social editor; Perry Cocke, business manager, and L. R. Folsom, circulation manager.

The association named four candidates for football manager and four for assistant, of whom the athletic committee on athletics chooses two in each class. The men honored were: For manager, H. H. Weddell, E. R. Pund, Russell Patterson and J. B. Burch, for assistant, E. J. Hardin, M. Seabrook, C. Headley, George Allen. The association chooses the members of the track team managerial staff outright and elected Roy Davis, manager, and Steve Mitchell, assistant.

DECATUR WILL OBSERVE JEFF DAVIS' BIRTHDAY

The Agnes Lee chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, the Clement A. Evans camp of the United Confederate Veterans, and the Decatur board of trade will combine in the celebration of the birthday anniversary of Jefferson Davis at Decatur next Tuesday. C. M. Candler, chairman of the state railroad commission, will make the address of the day, and a large crowd undoubtedly will be present at the court house. The exercises will begin there at 10 a. m. Dr. A. M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture, also will be present, to deliver an address on "The Agricultural Possibilities of DeKalb County."

The Farmers' union and the farmers generally throughout the county are very much interested in this matter and a large number of farmers, dairymen and truckmen will be present.

Another matter of great interest to the people of DeKalb county is the possible location of the Fifth District Agricultural school in DeKalb county by the coming legislature. This subject will be discussed by R. F. Smith, representative-elect from DeKalb county, who promises to exert his utmost efforts to secure the location of this school in DeKalb county.

President W. J. Dabney of the Decatur board of trade, will preside over the meeting and introduce the speakers.

MANY FRIENDS MOURN MRS. D. F. WINN'S DEATH

Mrs. Dean F. Winn, beloved by all who knew her for her graciousness and beauty of character, died Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at a private sanitarium. She is survived by her husband, Dr. Dean F. Winn, one of the most widely esteemed of Atlanta's younger physicians; her mother, Mrs. R. A. Montsalvatge; by five sisters, Mrs. W. L. Marshall, Mrs. T. A. Marshall, Mrs. J. R. Tomlinson, Miss Edna Montsalvatge, and Miss Mabel Montsalvatge, and by two brothers, Messers. A. R. and R. F. Montsalvatge. Funeral services will be conducted Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist church. The interment will be in West View.

In their bereavement, the family and relatives of Mrs Winn have the sympathy of scores of devoted friends.

JUDGE LAMAR'S ADDRESS TO BE HEARD THURSDAY

Justice Joseph R. Lamar, the Georgia member of the United States supreme court, will deliver his address before the Georgia Bar association at Warm Springs Thursday night instead of Friday morning. The original program had to be changed because of the necessity for Justice Lamar's presence in Washington on Friday. A number of Atlanta lawyers who wish to hear the distinguished Georgian will go to Warm Springs Thursday afternoon.

Justice Lamar and Mrs. Lamar arrived in Atlanta Wednesday. The latter is to sit upon the members of the state supreme court at the capitol and later in the day he and Mrs. Lamar continued their journey to Warm Springs.

ALLEN AND ANDERSON BOTH CLAIM SENATE PRESIDENCY

Both candidates for president of the state senate are claiming the election by the same vote of twenty-seven out of forty-four members.

John T. Allen, senator-elect, passed through Atlanta Wednesday on his way to the annual meeting of the Georgia Bar association at Warm Springs. He had been preceded but a few days by Randolph Anderson, senator-elect from Savannah. When told that Mr. Anderson claimed twenty-seven votes in the upper house, Mr. Allen opined that his opponent must have "peeped," as that was just what he thought was pledged to him.

And there you are.

HOOPER AND GOODWIN RACE A TIE IN THE MATRIMONIAL HANDICAP

NEW YORK, May 29.—Nat Goodwin and De Wolf Hopper, stars in the theatrical and matrimonial firmament for these many years, have startled their friends again. Each has taken a fifth wife, and the score now stands as follows:

Hopper—No. 1, Ella Gardiner; No. 2, Ida Mosher; No. 3, Edna Wallace; No. 4, Nella Berger; No. 5, Elda Curry.

Goodwin—No. 1, Eliza Weathersby; No. 2, Nella Pease; No. 3, Maxine Elliott; No. 4, Edna Goodrich; No. 5, Marjorie Moreland.

Hopper was married several days ago in New York, and Goodwin a few days later took his fifth wife in Los Angeles. Hopper had his matrimonial rival beaten for a few days, but those who knew Goodwin felt that he would not rest, and they were prepared for it when the wire flashed the news that Marjorie Moreland had become Mrs. Goodwin.

Lillian Russell is now happily married so there is little chance of her re-entering the race, which she ran with Hopper and Goodwin for several years.

WHITE PLAGUE WAR IS FACING BIG HANDICAP

Officers of Atlanta Assn. Declare Their Appeal for Funds Elicits Little

Unless the Atlanta Anti-Tuberculosis association can secure the $5,000 in subscriptions for which it has asked the people of Atlanta, the officials of the organization state that it will be seriously handicapped in its work this year.

The canvass for funds for the support of the institution is still in progress, but so far only a small beginning has been made. There has been collected less than 15 per cent of the fund the public was asked to give.

The Anti-Tuberculosis association, nevertheless, is prosecuting its work more vigorously than ever before, and is responding to every call made upon it, seeking to better conditions and lend assistance wherever it is possible to do so.

Many instances might be given of the splendid work the visiting nurses of the association are doing, not only in ameliorating severe conditions wherever they find them, but in seeking to prevent the spread of the disease to others. Example is given of a family of eight members, living in Atlanta, in which five of the children are suffering from tuberculosis. The bread winners of the family all are under sixteen years of age and they earn a total of $9.20 a week, working in a mill, upon which the family is supported. The association makes it a point to keep close supervision upon families of this sort, to win their affection and insist on carefulness in their habits, so as to prevent the spread of the disease.

Three children in another instance, making $45 a month, earn the entire living for a family of eleven. When the elder of these children contracted tuberculosis, the family income was reduced more than half. It took not only argument but force to get this young girl into a sanitarium, where she has been committed until sufficiently improved to resume her occupation.

Contending with hundreds of cases of this sort every year, the association is in need of an income which will enable it to get definite results. It needs for this purpose the sum of $10,000 annually. Of this amount the public is asked to give $5,000. The solicitation will continue in the hope that the people of Atlanta will see the necessity of supporting this organization.

CHATTANOOGA EXHIBITS SHOWN TO ATLANTIANS

Big Party of Atlanta Manufacturers Study Permanent Exhibit

BY ROLAND ROWE.
(Journal Staff Correspondent.)

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 29.—A party composed of sixty-five Atlanta manufacturers and businessmen, headed by Wilmer L. Moore, president of the Atlanta chamber of commerce; Walter Cooper, secretary, and Brooks Morgan, chairman of the special committee, inspected the building here today which is devoted to a prominent exhibit of Chattanooga made goods.

The Atlanta visitors were met by M. E. Temple, chairman of the exhibit committee of the Chattanooga Manufacturers' association; O. L. Bunn, the secretary, and C. A. Grather, of the traffic department, and were by them shown through the building. The building is four stories high, and contains more than 5,000 square feet, every inch of which is devoted to a display of the products of Chattanooga factories.

STEVENS BOY CAUGHT: FATHER BELIEVES IN HIS SON'S INNOCENCE

alone at the undertaking stablishment of H. M. Patterson & Son on Forsyth street.

At 11:35 o'clock Mr. Stevens started for the ruins upon which he left his home standing on McDonough road, two miles beyond the federal prison.

SUSPECT SEEN.

Someone in Red Oak, Ga., called the Atlanta police headquarters Friday morning and said that a mulatto negro, answering the description of the alleged half-breed Indian employed by Mrs. Stevens, was seen walking along the railroad tracks in the vicinity of that town early Friday morning.

The city police claim that the negro's name is Dan Walker, and that he is well known to them. He is just a mulatto, who has the appearance, they say, of having Indian blood. Notices have been sent to Palmetto, Newburn and other points on the road to lookout for such a party.

DIDN'T KNOW OF TRAGEDY.

Mr. Stevens knew nothing of the tragedy until Thursday forenoon when he reached Atlanta. He had received a long distance telephone message from his brother-in-law, Sergeant Whatley, said he, informing him merely that his house had burned down. Arriving in Atlanta Thursday morning he proceeded from the depot to the real estate office of W. E. Treadwell on Broad street, and there was told for the first time that he had lost his wife and his adopted daughter as well as his home. From there he went to the undertaker's.

Mr. Stevens' first care when he arrived at the ruins of his home was for the stock and the crops. He asked some of his neighbors, who were awaiting him in silence, whether "the old tree" had been cut down; whether the oat crop had been harvested.

Upon being shown where the bodies had been found amid the ashes, he said that in the room with them had been three trunks, in one of the trunks important papers, and in the other money and jewelry.

He was shown an old axe that had been found among the ashes of the house. Never had it been kept anywhere save at the woodpile nearby, said he.

The new axe, reported to have been bought recently, and at first not discovered anywhere about the ruins, was found Thursday by searchers. It was in an outhouse about a hundred yards from the burned home, and there was nothing in its appearance to connect it with the tragedy. There, in the same outhouse, was found Mrs. Stevens' Bible.

Walter Wilkes, a black negro who formerly worked about the place, and Ernest Maynard, a half-breed Indian, who also worked there, both are suspected by Mr. Stevens as well as by some of the neighbors. It is said that they were quite chummy. While the half-breed worked for Mr. Stevens, the black negro worked for a neighbor, S. J. Farris. About three months ago Mr. Stevens discharged the half-breed for shiftlessness, and Walter Wilkes, the black negro, left Mr. Farris' employ at the same time. Later the black negro returned and worked for Mr. Stevens until about three weeks ago, when he didn't show up on Sunday. No one knew why he quit. The half-breed negro is said to have been working near Macon. Both of them are sought now in connection with the murder. Maynard is described as being about twenty-five years old, with a scar on his right cheek from eye to mouth, short upper lip, light color, slim, weight 150 opungs.

Another pocket knife was found in the ruins Thursday. Mr. Stevens said that there was none around the house. This is the second to be found. He could not identify it.

Searchers found also an empty 38-caliber revolver shell which had been exploded in a revolver, the cap being punched. The metal portion of a 12-gauge shotgun shell also was found. Mr. Stevens said the only weapon in the house was a .32-caliber revolver, and it wouldn't shoot.

REWARD IS OFFERED.

At the request of Solicitor C. S. Reid, of DeKalb county, Governor Joseph M. Brown Thursday afternoon offered a reward of $500 for the slayer or slayers of Mrs. S. C. Stephens and her little adopted daughter.

Solicitor Reid reached Atlanta from Decatur Thursday morning and called immediately on the governor. On account of the day being set aside for hearing pardons and respite pleas it was some time before Mr. Reid succeeded in getting a hearing. The governor at once acceded to the request and the reward was formally offered shortly after noon.

Mrs. H. E. Hartley, of 33 Dalney street, a sister of Mrs. Sarah C. Stevens, says she doesn't believe that young Wade Stevens had anything whatever to do with the tragic deaths of his mother and adopted sister.

"The boy is only sixteen years of age," his aunt said Thursday morning, "and he is an unusually frail child. It was only in November that he was taken ill and put under a doctor's treatment. When a very young child he strained himself lifting a heavy weight, and since that time has never been in good health. He was an only child, and of course was spoiled more or less by his parents, but if he ever had any fuss with his people I never heard of it.

Then Mrs. Hartley explained that she couldn't understand the reports that he had been to a reformatory or had at anytime been in the navy. "If he had ever been in a reformatory my sister never said anything about it to me, and I never heard of him being in the navy either."

Mrs. Hartley said if it should develop that the boy is implicated, he must have had some one to help him because, in her opinion, he was physically unable to perform such an act unaided.

Mrs. Hartley heard from her sister about a week ago, and in the letter she mentioned that she was coming to Atlanta to trade off a couple of pieces of property. She banked at the Third National bank, and probably carried as much as $200 on person to meet her pay rolls, it is said.

INQUEST HELD WEDNESDAY.

The inquest over the mother and girl was held late Wednesday afternoon. After a short deliberation between the members of the jury, the coroner and Sheriff McCurdy, the verdict of murder was given out, and it was recommended that Wade Stevens be arrested, pending an investigation.

No evidence of much importance was brought out at the inquest. County Physician Fincher stated that he could discover no marks of violence on either body. The undertakers who have charge of the body also scouted the report that the skulls of the victims had been crushed in.

"Each is cracked," declared Fred Patterson, "but only as the fire would have cracked it. Neither skull has been crushed."

A knife was shown at the coroner's inquest which was found beneath the body of the older woman. It was open, the wooden part of the handle was burned off, it was bent and corroded, a condition which, it was said, could only have been caused by the knife being moist with blood or some other substance before the fire touched it. The knife appeared to have been a new one, as the blade was exceedingly sharp. The knife is now in the possession of he sheriff, who will show it to Mr. Sevens in an effort to have it identified.

The sheriff is said to be looking for a half-breed Indian negro. This man, it was stated by neighbors, had been discharged about two months ago, and since then had been seen hanging around the Stevens home. It was said tha Mrs. Stevens had once shot at him.

It was also stated by a neighbor that he saw two negroes driving along the road near the Stevens place early Wednesday morning. In their wagon, it was stated was a pile of fresh cut oats.

But little was discovered among the ruins of the house on a close examination. Two bracelets and a ring were found, a small bank, empty, and the remains of a purse. A pile of melted metal was found near the latter, which was apparently some silver change which had been in it. These articles were turned over to relatives.

A hoe, a sledge hammer and an axe were also found among the ashes, the hoe lying close to the bodies. The axe was a dull one, and according to the testimony of neighbors, was not the one generally used by the Stevens family.

AXE IS MISSING.

This last axe is nowhere to be found, and upon its discovery, says Sheriff McCurdy, may hang a very valuable clew. It is his theory that murder, if murder was committed, was done with this axe, and he expects to discover blood stains on it, if it is found. A close search was made of the surrounding woods without finding the axe, and it is probable that a well in the rear of the house will be sounded today to see if the axe or any other clew may be found in it.

Tracks have been discovered leading away from the rear of the house. They had been made apparently by a man running at full speed and by someone wearing big shoes. Sheriff McCurdy staked them off and took measurements of them.

The woods surrounding the house were searched thoroughly, but no new clews could be found Wednesday.

Only one person has been found who believes he saw the house burning. This is a neighbor, Farris Simpson, who says that he was walking home at 1 o'clock Wednesday morning when he saw the sky glowing brightly in the direction of the Stevens house. He was about a quarter of a mile distant at the time and did not try to investigate.

DANIELS URGES ARMOR PLATE PLANT FOR U. S.

Secretary of Navy Points Out Saving of $3,000,000 on Powder Plant

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Secretary Daniels, in a statement issued today, by way of justifying his contention that the government could save money by manufacturing its own armor plate, pointed out that a saving of more than $3,000,000 has been made in the last thirteen years during which the navy department has operated a powder factory.

Mr. Daniels declared the government was now manufacturing powder at 37 cents a pound, which was as good or better than that for which it paid 60 cents a pound to outsiders.

Deferred Payments Permit Your Buying A Diamond Without Feeling the Outlay

Diamonds can be bought here by paying only one-fifth cash—the balance, plus 6 per cent simple interest, to be paid in ten equal monthly payments.

The 6 per cent simple interest is the difference between cash and the long time accommodation. It is just enough to pay for the additional booking involved. It would certainly not be fair to the cash customer to sell on long time without this difference.

Diamonds will unquestionably be advanced 20 per cent within the next few months. The advance in price by the syndicate and the new tariff bill makes the advance certain.

Selections sent anywhere for inspection.

HERE'S AN ARITHMETIC PROBLEM FOR YOU

C. R. McCrary Submits a Dispute in Pencentage to Journal Readers

Ellaville, Ga., May 27, 1913.

Editor The Journal:

To settle a dispute in percentage, will you please answer the following question:

The people in Georgia are now paying $1.75 for the first five readers and arithmetic. The same books cost the people in Ontario 59 cents.

If the people in Georgia buy $1,000,000 worth of school books each year, what should the people in Ontario pay for same books?

In other words, we are paying over 244 per cent more for school books than the people in Ontario pay; now make it even 244 per cent more, what would the books cost in Ontario that we are now paying $1,000,000 for. I will give a prize for first correct answer published in Journal.

The above statement is absolutely true, and the answer will give an idea of how we are being held up by the book trust.

I have the text books used in Ontario and they are superior to ours. I would like for some one to answer why we are paying such prices for school books. The people in Ontario are just like we are. They are surrounded by every hindrance that we are except the book trust; they have put the book trust out of business. If they are doing this in Ontario, why in the name of common sense can't we do it in Georgia? I would like for some one connected with buying school books for Georgia children to answer.

Very truly yours,
C. R. MCRORY.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS TO GET NEW LINE ON EACH OTHER

Conference of Superintendents Thursday Discusses Important Suggestion

Some thirty superintendents of the largest Sunday schools in Atlanta were the luncheon guests of John S. Spalding and C. V. LeCraw at noon Thursday in Durand's cafe, at a conference to discuss a new plan suggested for enlivening Sunday school work in Atlanta by encouraging rivalry among the schools themselves. Mr. LeCraw is superintendent of the First Christian Sunday school, which broke a world's record of attendance recently, and Mr. Spalding is superintendent of the Second Baptist Sunday school, which was engaged for three months in a tremendous contest with the First Christian school.

The superintendents at the luncheon Thursday discussed the suggestion that the attendance each Sunday be reported in the Monday newspapers, in tabulated statements which will make apparent at once the contrast among them.

"The matter has been discussed already informally among the superintendents," said Mr. LeCraw Thursday morning, "and it seems in advance of the conference that all of them who have been approached, favor the suggestion cordially. The idea behind the suggestion is that it will put the new vigor of a healthy rivalry into all of the schools, benefiting them generally, and so will prepare the way for greater activities this fall."

IMPROVEMENTS MADE ON S. S. "CITY OF SAVANNAH"

New York-Savannah Coaster Gets More Staterooms and Barber Shop

The steamship City of Savannah of the Ocean Steamship company, which is now undergoing alterations and will resume service commencing from New York, Thursday, May 29, is to have seven additional staterooms, private baths in connection with the two large bedrooms, and in addition a barber shop is to be installed, similar to those on the City of St. Louis and City of Montgomery.

The new staterooms will be located on the promenade deck running aft from the present rooms, 55, 58 and 59, except that two of the new rooms will be located forward of the private baths above mentioned in the space now shown on the plans as being occupied by the chief engineer and the first assistant engineer. These changes will necessitate the renumbering of rooms on the promenade deck except room 45, and the even numbers of the rooms on that deck will be as follows:

Starboard side: Commencing with the room now shown on the plan as being the chief engineer's rm. N. 52, private bath connecting with 54, 55, 56, 58, 60, 62, 64, 66, 68, 70.

Port side: Commencing with the present room 45, which number will not be changed, 47, private bath connecting with 49, 49, 51, 53, 55, 57, 59, 61, 63, 65. Room 67 will be located between rooms 65 and 70, exactly the same as the present room 59, which will be removed to permit the extension of the hall.

Rooms 49 and 54, which are furnished with double brass beds, will be connected with private baths, and two full first class tickets will be required for each room, the same as heretofore, but with an additional charge of $15 for the private bath instead of $10 as heretofore. Rooms 47 and 52 will have two berths each and will also connect with the private baths so that they can be sold in connection with rooms 49 and 54 if desired, the same as similar suites on the St. Louis and Montgomery.

The balance of the new rooms will have two berths each and will be exactly the same as the present promenade deck rooms.

Rooms 17, 19 and 21 on the hurricane deck will be dispensed with in order to make room for the barber shop.

SPEAKS ON CHRISTIAN MISSIONS FOR HEBREWS

He has been a Presbyterian minister for fifteen years and is at the present time superintendent of the Emmanuel Missions to the Jews in Baltimore. He is an interesting speaker. There will be a mass meeting at the First Presbyterian church Friday night at 8 o'clock in the interest of Jewish missions in the city.

TALLULAH SUIT GOES TO HANDS OF JURY

Verdict Will Probably Be Given Late During Afternoon—Debate Limited

BY SAM BELL,
Journal Staff Correspondent.

CLAYTON, Ga., May 29.—The suit of the state of Georgia to eject the Georgia Railway and Power company from the Tallulah river gorge went to the jury at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon.

Argument in the case opened yesterday afternoon and was continued this morning. The attorney agreed to limit debate to four hours on each side.

The argument was opened for the state yesterday afternoon by Edgar Watkins. He was followed by Alex King for the power company and W. M. Harris for the state.

H. H. Dean opened the argument this morning for the power company and was followed by R. C. Ellis for the state, and Luther Rosser for the power company. Attorney General Felder concluded the argument for the state.

Exhaustive discussion of the filed notes of the original survey was presaged by the argument made by R. C. Ellis, attorney for the Tallulah Falls Conservation association, who contended that these notes and not the plats of the survey formed the real and legal basis for the title to the land in the gorge of the Tallulah river.

Because of discrepencies which he declared existed between the notes of the original surveyors and their own plats the notes must, in the present instance, be taken as final. These notes, he strove to show, established that the ancient processioners went only to the brink of the gorge and gave little or no intimation of any attempt to proceed to the river bed.

In closing its testimony, the Georgia Railway and Power company introduced the deeds of the original land grants issued in 1818-1820 and depositions from a score of former owners of the land, setting forth that the boundaries had always been considered the river bed. J. A. Reynolds, a Tallulah Falls surveyor, also testified.

Reynolds told of making complete survey of some of the disputed land several years ago to establish the lines of land owned by Mr. Moss and Mrs. White at Tallulah Falls. Reynolds said he had run his lines to the river bed as the boundries.

Interest in the case, which has lagged perceptibly since Monday, was revived in a measure this morning by the attorneys' arguments. True to their reputations, the Rabun mountaineers came to hear the speech-making when they could not be lured by dry-as-dust testimony dealing with land lines and the rottening stumps of ancient pine trees.

Read of Walker Case Took Bichloride But Is Cured By Doctor

(By Associated Press.)

DETROIT, Mich., May 29.—Thomas McCabe, a Detroit engineer, who swallowed ten grains of bichloride of mercury a week ago, has recovered. A solution of bicarbonate of soda, injected into his veins by Dr. Andrew T. Sherman saved the life of the engineer. When he took the poison he declared it was because B. Sanders Walker, of Macon, said death from its effects was painless.

"I believe if this preparation is used in such cases a large percentage of them will be saved," said Dr. Sherman. "The injections can be made in any vein. I made eight punctures in all, the injections being given every five or six hours. Fourteen drams of bicarbonate of soda in three pints of normal water solution was used.

"The thing of most importance is to be certain the solution is absolutely aseptic; otherwise the patient would be killed by it."

After swallowing the poisons and suffering intense agony, McCabe decided he wanted to live and aided the physician in every way possible.

CUBAN MILITIA ARRIVES TO HONOR MAINE VICTIMS

Protected Cruiser Cuba Is but a Midget Among American Dreadnaughts in Harbor

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 29.—The protected cruiser Cuba arrived early today, bearing representatives of the Cuban government, army and navy to pay tribute here to the memory of the United States sailors who perished when the battleship Maine was blown up in Havana harbor, fifteen years ago.

By special permission from the state, as in such a case, the Cuban forces will be welcomed ashore under arms tomorrow to participate in a parade preceding the dedication of a monument to the Maine's dead.

The welcome of booming guns from twelve dreadnoughts of the United States North Atlantic fleet awaited the visiting warship when she proceeded from the quarantine station up to the Hudson river anchorage under escort of the gunboat Yankton, to be boarded later in the day by an official reception committee and to be met ashore her own delegation to pay respects to Mayor Gaynor.

In addition to three special envoys and the usual naval force, the cruiser brought a battalion of coast artillery and a military band to participate in the parade. The men include both whites and blacks, discrimination as to color having been ruled against by President Menocal.

The Cuba is an American built cruiser. She was launched at the Cramps yards in Philadelphia on October 11, Cuban Independence day, 1911, at the same time as the Cuban training ship Patria. The cruiser is small compared with the great fighting machines among which she found herself in the Hudson. She is a 2,200 ton vessel, 265 feet in length and with 39 beam. Her armament consists of four six-pounders, four three-pounders and four one-pounders, and her complement is 105 men.

A. S. COLYAR RELEASED FROM BOND ON THURSDAY

Tennessee Authorities Failed to Forward Requisition Papers on Date Agreed

A. S. Colyar, the Tennessean, who figured conspicuously in the recent dictograph sensation involving bribery charges and counter-charges of graft between Colonel Thomas B. Felder, Mayor Woodward and others, on the one hand, and Chief of Police Beavers and Chief of Detectives Lanford, on the other, was released from his bond Thursday at 2 p. m. by Chief Beavers.

Colyar's name jumped into the news when the dictograph matter became public, and the following day there came a wire from the Knoxville police and Atlanta police, asking that Colyar be arrested and held for them. They charged an indictment for forgery. Accordingly Colyar was arrested. He said the charge was four years old and had never been prosecuted. He alleged a conspiracy.

A few hours later Colyar was released on bond.

Thursday was the day set by the Tennessee police for the delivery of requisition papers and the extradition of Colyar to Tennessee.

No documents came, but instead Chief Beavers received a letter from the Knoxville chief of police requesting that Colyar be held until June 3.

Chief Beavers declined to accede to this. His reply to the Knoxville chief was quoted by him to be that immediate action would have to be taken on Thursday or he would order the release of Colyar and his bondsmen.

Grand Jury Subpena Is Served Upon A. S. Colyar

The issuance Thursday morning of a grand jury subpena for A. S. Colyar to appear before the grand jury Friday morning led to the belief that the grand jury had decided to make an investigation of the charges which have been made by A. S. Colyar and the city detectives against Colonel T. B. Felder and the counter charges which Colonel Felder has made against them.

An investigation developed the fact that the city detectives, anticipating that the grand jury would make such an investigation nhad the subpena issued so that A. S. Colyar would be on hand should his testimony be needed.

The grand jury has taken no action looking to an investigation and it does not meet until some time next week, the actual date not having been fixed.

A. S. Colyar was served with the subpena and stated that he would be available to the grand jury should it care to interrogate him.

Burns' Detective, Tobie, Left Atlanta Thursday

C. W. Tobie, the Burns detective who on Tuesday evening announced that he had discontinued his investigation into the murder of Mary Phagan, left Thursday afternoon for Chicago.

Just prior to taking his train, Mr. Tobie denied that he had given out an interview to the effect that William J. Burns would himself come to Atlanta soon after his return to this country from Europe. "I have made no such statement, and I am not advised of any such intention on the part of Mr. Burns," declared Mr. Tobie.

PAY WHOLE AMOUNT OF CREMATORY NOW, IS PLAN SUGGESTED

course if it appeared to be the only one possible.

Later Alderman J. R. Nutting came forward with the same suggestion, and was joined by other members of council. The idea seems to have occurred to several council members without consultation with one another. There appears to be a growing sentiment in favor of it, and it will not be surprising if council finally decides on this plan.

Meanwhile, Attorney Evans announces that work on the crematory will proceed with redoubled speed. The decision allows ten days in which to move for a rehearing. The company will make extraordinary efforts to complete the plant within that time. It probably will not get actually through, but as something like 85 per cent of the whole plant is up now, ten days will carry it far toward actual completion.

Alderman John S. Candler, himself an ex-judge of the supreme court and a leader in the council fight to stand by the contract when Mayor Woodward was opposing it, said Thursday morning:

"I have no doubt but that there is some legal way whereby the council can protect the health of the citizens. I consider the public health the most important of all questions in the city government. Just now the most important health question is to dispose of garbage. The best way to dispose of garbage, and the only possible way to dispose of it this summer is by completing the Destructor company's plant. If it becomes necessary the council should stop all other public work in order to pay the whole price of the plant this year. Health is far more important than widening streets or building new school houses.

PLANT WORTH $276,000.

"As to the plant, it is worth every dollar of the $276,000 which the city proposes to pay for it. I have examined it carefully several times myself, and have the opinion of engineers, both those employed by the city and others whose opinion I have taken occasion to obtain. They all agree that the plant is a magnificent piece of work, worth what the city proposes to pay.

"I am so confident of this, that I am willing to trust my conviction to any taxpayer who is honest and unprejudiced who will go and see the plant for himself.

"If we should have an epidemic here this summer from rotting garbage it would hurt the city, and hurt it bad. And I would not be surprised to see such an epidemic, if we make no provision to properly dispose of garbage."

These views of Alderman Candler may be said to represent the views of a large majority of council members. They feel that their paramount duty is to protect the public health. They consider a crematory the most important question in the health department. They are satisfied they have made a good contract and that the plant will be worth what they propose to pay for it. Therefore, they have no intention of throwing up the sponge on account of the supreme court's decision.

MAYOR IS ELATED.

Of course, Mayor Woodward is elated. He looks upon the decision as a vindication of his "common sense interpretation of the state constitution and the city charter." He considers it a victory "for the people." He construes the decision literally, and declares that it has sounded the death knell of both the contract and the plant.

"The city will never pay a dollar on this plant unless two-thirds of the voters at an election called for the purpose approve the contract," he said

EMPLOYES OF GOVERNOR FOSS GO OUT ON STRIKE

12,000 Employes of Mills in Mass. Controlled by Foss Demand Increased Pay

(By Associated Press.)

BOSTON, May 29.—Twelve hundred employes of the B. F. Stuartevant company and the Becker Milling company at Hyde Park struck today. Both companies are controlled by Governor Eugene N. Foss.

The strike, which was voted last night, is to enforce a demand for a 20 per cent wage increase and improved working conditions.

MRS. PANKHURST IS ILL IN JAIL AGAIN

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 29.—Emmeline Pankhurst, militant suffragette leader, has taken no food since she was rearrested and taken to Holloway jail.

She is said to be in a very weak state owing to reduced vitality consequent on her previous "hunger strikes," which lessened her powers of resistance. According to suffragette leaders, her release may be expected at any hour.

Thursday morning. "If the people want to pay a million dollars for it, all right, the money is theirs. But I don't think the people will approve the contract. I'm going to give them a full statement of this crematory proposition in the papers next Sunday, and on some other matters. However, the Destructor company needn't suffer. (And here the mayor chuckled.) The charter says that if council makes an illegal contract, then every member of council who voted for it can be held individually liable, just as though it were his own individual contract. So if the Destructor company wants its money, let it sues the gang that voted for this outrageous deal."

C. J. HADEN TO CONFER WITH J. PHIL CAMPBELL

Movement on Foot in Athens to Organize Trade Bodies of the State

Thursday afternoon at Athens, Ga., Charles J. Haden will confer with J. Phil Campbell, and district agents of the State Agricultural college extension work, preparatory to the organization throughout state of county trade bodies.

The unbuilding of the village and country is to be an important feature of the statewide movement. Industrial organizations of the west and northwest in which the town and country were combined have proved highly successful. Good roads, improved school service, rural industries, such as dairying and truck growing, have been developed under these organizations. By co-operation, better and cheaper methods of producing are had, and superior market service effected. It has been found that the individual producer of butter or truck products can get better prices at less expense than a number united under one shipping management. A trade organization in a town which includes the farmers of the vicinity encourages diversified crops by finding better methods and larger markets, bringing money to the community throughout the year.

Mr. Haden has persistently worked on the plans of the state-wide chamber for the past three months, getting data from all sources and the experiences of other sections, where similar organizations have been in operation. The Atlanta chamber of commerce will invite a meeting of the leading men from the towns and counties over the state, and representatives of all the trade bodies now organized and those that are now being organized, to be held some time in June.

The Boys' Corn clubs, which have been a wonderful success in Georgia, have been made successful only because of the co-operation of the trade bodies throughout the state. Mr. Campbell is at the head of this movement, and has most cordially co-opearted with the state-wide movement as a valuable ally to the boys' organization.

CHIEF ASKS HUTCHESON FOR "PROTECTED LIST"

Lawyer Not Ready Yet, Is Answer—Beavers Says He Is Disappointed

Chief of Police James L. Beavers called Attorney Carl Hutcheson over the telephone Thursday morning and asked if the list of "protected disorderly houses," which Mr. Hutcheson promised in a card several days ago was ready.

Mr. Hutcheson is said to have replied that the list is not yet ready and that he will telephone the police official when it is completed.

Chief Beavers in the telephone conversation is said to have reminded Mr. Hutcheson that Thursday is the third day since the publication of Mr. Hutcheson's card stating that the list could be furnished in three days.

Chief Beavers is said to have declared in the telephone conversation that he had hoped to receive the list of disorderly houses in his morning mail, and was very much disappointed in not finding it.

The chief told Mr. Hutcheson that if the latter had the list in his office that he (Beavers) would be glad to send a call officer for it, as he is very anxious to get the information.

Mr. Hutcheson told the police official, it is said, that he would telephone him when the list is complete.

In the course of the conversation Chief Beavers said that he wanted the list in tangible shape; names of persons operating the houses, street numbers, etc., and he asked Mr. Hutcheson to sign the list.

Mr. Hutcheson answered that he didn't propose to have any one dictate to him as to how or when he should get up the list, and that he intended to use his own judgment in making it up and submitting it.

Negro's Head Stops Ten Story Flight of Brick Which Smashes

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 29.—William Moore, a negro, was annoyed by a headache today, when physicians expected he would have been occupying space in the morgue. He stopped a brick yesterday after it had fallen ten storihes and was traveling with the velocity of a cannon ball. When it hit Moore on the top of his head, it broke into bits. Moore sat down suddenly and apparently was a subject of the coroner.

Workmen on the building from which the brick dropped sent for a physician. When the doctor arrived Moore sat up. "What d'ye want to do that for?" he

Help the Grocers and Butchers In This Commendable Plan.

The plans of Atlanta's retail grocers and butchers to close their places of business for a half holiday each Wednesday afternoon during the months of July and August merit the public's hearty goodwill and support. This innovation, when once understood, will occasion little or no inconvenience to any well managed household. It will be as easy to order the day's table supplies in the forenoon as later; indeed, such a plan will work to the advantage of housekeepers as well as merchants by leaving them the afternoon free from all such cares.

It is doubtful that there is any class of men upon whose energies the summer months are more taxing than retail grocers and butchers. They are in a continual rush to supply a multitude of needs and to meet all manner of different tastes. They are dealing with countless details, the smallest of which must receive careful attention. In no particular is the public more exacting than in respect to its food; and the man who is trying to please the public's appetite and keep its digestion sound has a task that is as difficult and wearing as it is important.

These merchants and their thousands of employes are, by every rule of good sense and fair play, entitled to a half holiday once a week during the hot summer months. It is to be hoped that everyone of them will enter the movement in which the vast majority have already enlisted. And it is to be hoped that every home in Atlanta will co-operate in making this commendable plan a distinctive and permanent success.

New Zest in Arctic Exploration.

The discovery of both the North and the South Poles has in no wise lessened the interest or the value of arctic exploration, but on the contrary has simply blazed a path for more thorough and fruitful quests. Indeed, the mere finding, or identification, of those points which we call the tips of the earth's axis is within itself of little account; as one writer observes, "Had nothing been done in the New World more than the bare discovery of America, it would hardly have been worth while; Columbus opened the way for others and that is what the polar discoveries have successively done."

The far-reaching and practical purpose of such expeditions is witnessed by that of the Stefansson party which is preparing to set forth from Esquimault, British Columbia, about June the fifth for an extended excursion into the comparatively unknown regions of the frozen North. The prime object of these explorers will be to gather scientific data. Among them will be zoologists who will study the animal life of the arctic country and anthropologists who will investigate not only the habits and characteristics, but also the history and traditions of the natives. During a considerable part of their journey, the explorers will keep in touch, by means of wireless telegraphy, with the meteorological stations at Iceland and on the Aleutian islands to which, as a news dispatch explains, "they hope to furnish daily messages, thus providing among other things a means of predicting the approach of storms from the North—a matter of utmost importance to navigation in the northern oceans and in the Great Lakes."

It is a noteworthy fact that the Stefansson expedition has bestirred such widespread interest among scientists that it has become necessary to enlarge its original plans; two vessels instead of one, as was contemplated, will be required to carry those who wish to go. The experience of Peary, Amundsen, Scott and other brave adventurers are invaluable to future explorers of the arctics, constituting as they do an accurate record of the perils to be anticipated and the most practical plans to follow. There is little doubt that within the next few decades many interesting and really valuable facts of the polar regions will be brought to light.

The Thin Gray Legion.

The twenty-third annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans, now in progress at Chattanooga, is an event that inspires a tender and reverent patriotism in the soul of the South and calls forth a kindly sentiment in the entire nation. It is in such gatherings as this that the younger generation catches a breath of that heroic spirit which made the days from '61 to '65 the epic years of American history. We of a later and happier time are still permitted to hear the voices and grasp the hands of those who were comrades on fields of fire and blood; and they themselves, though their ranks be sere and dwindling, are still permitted to gather in their jackets of gray around the tattered flags and revive in softened memory the spell of a glorious long ago.

The reunions of our Civil war veterans, whether they are held in the South or the North, are no longer occasions for anything resembling sectional rancor; rather, they are occasions touched with a spirit of thoughtful and ennobling Americanism. Our country has come to realize that the valor and sacrifice of those gray warriors are its common heritage and that under whatever standard they fought they bore aloft an example of devotion to ideals which Americans of all times will do well to emulate.

This reunion at Chattanooga must, in the nature of things, be among the last of its kind that will be held. Hundreds of voices that answered the roll call so cheerly at Macon last year are silenced now and before another May brings its flowers, hundreds more will have ceased. But so long as a company of gray veterans, however few, assemble they will strike a thrill of patriotic love through their Southland's heart.

New Features for the Parcel Post.

From the day the parcel post was inaugurated it became evident that Atlanta would derive rich and far-reaching advantages from the new service. The public in general and merchants in particular were quick to see and to utilize the opportunities afforded them. Within the first week or two, this city had established a record of national note as a parcel post center and had outstripped, in this respect, scores of larger communities.

With so brisk a beginning, it is certain that Atlanta's parcel post business will be greatly quickened and extended when two new features of the service, by means of which parcels may be insured and may be paid for upon delivery, are introduced on July the first. These important additions will make the post more than ever valuable to merchants and convenient to purchasers. For an additional ten cents in stamps, a package may be insured on a valuation not to exceed fifty dollars and delivered by the postman who will collect for it at the door; the postoffice will remit to the sender.

By this means persons living out of the city may send an order either by mail or wire and receive what they want by return post, paying for the purchase when it arrives; and the same advantage, of course, is offered those within the city. It would be difficult to overestimate the broadening and stimulating effect of this service on mail-order trade. Alert merchants will not be slow to press their opportunities in this connection; for they will thus be enabled to reach more people through a wider range of territory and in less time and at less expense than ever before.

Consumers will be equally benefited whether they live in town or country. Housewives will be able to supply their wants quickly and cheaply; and farmers, if they will turn to account the advantages offered them, will be able to build up a steady trade with city customers.

And still they taunt us with references to mint juleps!

The Pecan-Growers' Convention

The annual meeting of the Georgia and Florida Pecan Growers' Association, now being held at Thomasville, marks the progress of one of the State's youngest yet most important industries.

A decade ago interest in pecan trees was limited to individuals here and there who valued the tree for its beauty and shade but who scarcely dreamed of its material possibilities. Today thousands of acres are devoted to pecan orchards which yield an ever-increasing revenue to their owners and which are making Georgia known throughout the Union for the high quality of the nuts produced.

The extent to which this industry has grown is evidenced in the fact that those engaged in it have formed a large association for the promotion of their common interests and are now holding one of the year's most noteworthy conventions.

THE SCHOOL TEACHER

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

The trouble with the school, if you really want to know what is the matter, is the Teacher.

The very word, teacher, connotes the whole list of antiquated, exploded and abandoned ideas in pedagogy.

In a word, it implies that it is the business of the adult in charge of the education of the child to tell him things. He is supposed to know more facts than the pupil, or at least to know better where to get the facts, and to stuff the young mind in cramming itself full of knowledge.

Hence, we set examinations for candidates for the teacher's position to see if they "know" enough facts to qualify them. Now, in very truth, it makes not the slightest bit of difference how many facts a teacher knows; the only question is, does he have the gift of inspiring youth?

So also we "grade" children according to the amount of history, arithmetic and geography they have memorized from books.

The entire out-of-date viewpoint is that there is a body of knowledge, which to know is to be educated. This may do for Mahometans or Chinese, but hardly for America.

The rational theory is to send children to school, not to study, but to be studied; not to lay them on Procrustean beds of "the system" and to lop them off if they are too long and to stretch them out if too short. When the washlady said to the schoolma'am, "I send Johnny to school for you to learn him," she unwittingly stated the truth of what ought to be.

Charles Dickens, who was a sympathetic student of Froebel, in one of his works makes Esther say: "I did doubt whether Richard would not have profited by some one studying him a little, instead of his studying Latin verse at" much."

Instead of Teachers-of-children we need Students-of-children, patient, trained, gifted men and women who try to find out what is in a child and to develop that.

The child-teacher stands the children up in "classes" and gives them a dose of geometry much as we use the process of gavage with chickens. The child-student stimulates and influences the child to get his mental food for himself.

There is no true child-training that is not individual. The class system is as bad in the schoolroom as in society.

The class system is a labor-saving device for lazy teachers, a money-saving scheme for stingy taxpayers. But it does not work. A child trainer should have no more pupils than he can give his personal attention and constant companionship.

The child trainer is born, not made; as in the case of animal trainers. One must be endowed by nature for it, as violinists or public speakers are for their professions. One must be called of God, as preachers are supposed to be.

Child training should be the most honorable and the highest paid of all professions. The very cream of the human race should be drawn to it. Think of an actor becoming a millionaire by playing the fool while teachers are paid the wages of clerk work!

We have not yet begun to appreciate the value of child training. We have made a trade of it to underpaid agents. We manage it by the cheap methods of "classes" and "examinations." The whole thing is artificial, unscientific and ineffective. Children develop in spite of it, not because of it.

In the second democracy there will be no "teachers;" then the "child trainers" will take the children in hand and by personal contact cause them to grow in morals, intelligence and bodily strength.

The child trainers!—these will be regarded as the true Levites, entitled to a tenth of all our wages.

Answer to "Ballade" of Anxious Inquiry

If I were wedded true and tight,
Unto a dame, such as you know,
I soon would set all things aright
By telling her—in accents low
That she cannot afford to go
And waste your dollars, bright and new
On outfits that are just for show.
That's what I'd do! That's what I'd do!

If you possess a mind that's bright,
Unto this lady you will go
And talk to her of "Equal Rights;"
Discuss with her just what you know
Of "Politics" and "Civic Flights."
And show her how her little mite
Will help to set the world aglow.
That's what I'd do! That's what I'd do!

If grocers' bills, in black and white,
Now look to you like too much dough,
Don't blame the cook nor make a plight
You made the laws yourself—you know.
Give them a chance and they will show
What equal suffrage soon will do
To put those grocers' bills aright.
That's what I'd do! That's what I'd do!

My friend, don't mimic Adam now,
And lay the blame on Gentle Eve;
Pray, be a sport, and make a vow
To vote to give us what we need—THE BALLOT.

What Oxford Knew of Thackeray

The ignorance of the scholar concerning what is going on in the world round him is proverbial. But a story of Thackeray's, though telling points to surprising possibilities of the cloistered life at Oxford, at least in the last century.

Thackeray, it seems, was to lecture at Oxford, and, according to custom, had first to get the vice chancellor's license to do so. This is the conversation that occurred, as the novelist reported it:

Vice Chancellor—Pray, sir, what can I do for you?
Thackeray—Mr. name is Thackeray.
Vice Chancellor—So I see by this card.
Thackeray—I seek permission to lecture within your precincts.
Vice Chancellor—Ah! you are a lecturer. What subjects do you undertake, religious or political?
Thackeray—Neither. I am a literary man.
Vice Chceller—Have you written anything?
Thackeray—Yes, I am the author of "Vanity Fair."
Vice Chancellor—I presume a dissenter. Has that anything to do with John Bunyan's book
Thackeray—Not exactly. I have also written "Pendennis."
Vice Chancellor—Never heard of these works. But no doubt they are proper books.
Thackeray—I have also contributed to Punch.
Vice Chancellor—Punch. I have heard of that. Is it not a humorous publication?—London Tit-Bits.

Are barking and a-larking as even now,

May 23.—With my wife and W. Tacha and Martin Foss to Nutley to Freddy Steele the draughting artist's and his daughter Anne met us at the train and the most lovable little girl ever I saw. To the tennis courts, albeit they were very muddy with the great rains and played three sets, sometime with one, sometime with another partner. Then Freddy and I did play after the older men were too weary to play longer, and he did beat me. To dinner then and I sate at Miss Freddy Polly's right hand and came to like her well, albeit she did banter me on my hatred of parsnips and swordfish. But we had a fine dinner and the best strawberry pasty I have had this season. So home by train and to bed by eleven o'clock.

24.—Queen Victoria's birthday, but I gave it no heed. Lay late and stopped in all the morning, labouring. To W. Labouring all the evening till midnight and so to-bed.

25.—Up by times and my wife cooked breakfast, for that Gretchen hath left and a Finn girl which vowed to come to us yesterday did not come. A fine breakfast, none the less. All the morning at my scrivening and then came Allen McCurdy the minister to luncheon and told me of this and that and his talk so sane and just and full of kindness and love like very much, albeit I did not like his new brown suit of clothing. With W. Trumbull to the tennis court, where a few games, and thence home to labouring, which I am doing too much of, meseems, and so to-bed.

The Forgotten City of Cuzco

The ancient city of Cuzco, when first viewed by European eyes, was, according to the best authorities, a great and wealthy municipality of perhaps 200,000 souls. How old it was at that time we have scant means of knowing. Garcilasso would have us believe that there were only thirteen Incas in the royal line from Manco Capac to Huayna Capac; Montesinos, on the other hand, assures us that the Incas ruled for 1,000 years! Which are we to believe? No written history of the Incas exists—only the records of the quipus, those queer knotted strings that were the Incas' sole documents, and for which no archaeologist has as yet discovered the key, the Rosetta stone.

Cuzco's original plan was, singularly enough, that of the Roman camp, a quadrangle divided by two intersecting streets into quarters, with a gate on each face and towers at the angles. Ramusio gives an interesting wood cut of the city as it appeared to the conquerors.

The Incas, like the citizens of the United States, had no more definite name for their country than Tavantinsuyu, the empire of the four provinces. The four strets of the capital, prolonged by great roads, divided it into four main provinces, each under the dominion of its governor. When their people came to Cuzco they lodged in their own quarter, where they adhered to their national costumes and the customs of their own province.

The city today retains the same general plan, its two principal streets being practically the old main thoroughfares. Its two eastern quarters lie upon steep hillsides; the two western are in the valley, where runs a little river, the Huatanay, spanned by bridges.

The northeast quarter was the Palatine Hill of this South American Rome, and contains the palaces of the kings, for each Inca after the manner of the Roman emperors, built his own abode, scorning to live in that of his predecessor.—Ernest Piexotto, in Scribner's Magazine.

VACATION KITS

By Frederic J. Haskin

Each year increases the number of persons who devote part of their summer vacations to some kind of travel. This calls for a corresponding increase of equipment and almost every class of manufacturers are called into service to provide the different outfits required for the comfort of the modern traveler. The various modes of travel and the increased demands for sanitation as well as physical comfort, which are developing each year, make the modest outfits supposed to be adequate a generation ago appear quite as much behind the times as the old-fashioned stage coach as a means of conveyance.

If the trip is to be a long one, baggage is an important matter. Usually trunks receive first consideration. For a European trip the trunk must be low enough to go under the berth of the steamer stateroom, but it need not lack convenience because of this. Carefully planned compartments keep the needed belongings in compact order easily accessible at all times. If the trip is to last only a few weeks and be devoted to sightseeing many travelers will find the steamer trunk sufficient for all their needs and there is a growing tendency on the part of both men and women to "travel light." Some of the tourist companies arrange to furnish specially designed steamer trunks for each member of their party. If the trip is to be of longer duration and some social life is expected in the European cities, an additional trunk or more may be taken, these larger pieces being stored in the hold of the vessel during the voyage.

If the trip is to include stops at fashionable summer resorts in this country, the customary trunk may be expanded into several, especially for women. Special wicker basket trunks are now being provided to accommodate Paris gowns. These are of goodly size to avoid crushing the garments and are especially light in weight so that their extra bulk does not render them wieldy for the baggage men to handle. The latest thing in dress trunks is a long, shallow one to accommodate a trained evening dress full length without folding. It is of white wicker and is provided with a heavy canvas cover to be used on the train. This cover is removable so that the wicker couch provides an attractive window seat in the summer bedroom. It has the advantage of keeping the frocks readily accessible and in good condition, thus avoiding the trouble of unpacking if short stops are to be made at different points. Another trunk is provided for hats. This, too, has been especially designed to secure lightness for its bulk and it may be secured large enough to hold the variety required for an entire season.

Besides these two special trunks is another, designed to hold miscellaneous articles of clothing, which may be found equipped with a number of drawers similar to a bureau so that little unpacking is required. Lingerie, neckwear, hosiery, waists, gloves and other small belongings each have special compartments, often plainly marked, so that keeping one's things in order seems a simple matter. A special velvet lined jewel case is included in some of the newer trunks. This is not popular, however, because most jewelry is carried by the owner who would hesitate to risk it in a trunk of any kind.

The traveler requiring only one trunk has received special consideration and the newest trunks are marvels of convenience. The favorite form now is the wardrobe trunk which can stand up on end in a room and permit half a dozen suits to be kept on hangers in good shape, while in drawers behind them the other articles of attire are conveniently placed. The first wardrobe trunks were weighty, clumsy affairs, but those now being shown seem to approach the acme of compact convenience combined with minimum weight. If the box-shaped trunk is preferred this style also will now be found to possess many advantages over barrel topped trunks of a generation ago. The trunk manufacturers study the needs of their patrons continually.

Trunks are being built to provide maximum space with minimum weight, with strength enough to resist the onslaughts of the hurried baggage handlers. Few metal covered trunks are now made, fiber or leather is substituted for iron in finishing most of the edges. It is lighter in weight and wears better. A fibroid material is used by many manufacturers because of its strength and lightness.

* * *

For motoring special automobile trunks are being built to fit the capacities of the different machines. They are usually made of leather or fiber and in appearance are more like suit cases than trunks.

* * *

A seemingly limitless variety of hand baggage has descended from the carpet bag and valise of former generations. During the last five years the club bag has superseded the suit case for many purposes, although their uses are not the same and the frequent traveler may have need of both. For the short trip where an extra suit is not required, the bag is preferred because it is less unwieldy. Club bags come in all sizes according to the demands of the traveler. Some will carry a change of underwear, a shirt or two, and all of the toilet implements. Others will only accommodate a few essentials. The club bag may be as cheap or as expensive as its own wishes. It may be of canvas or fiber or of the most expensive leather with gold or silver mountings.

If desired a club bag may be purchased ready furnished and these furnishings represent many grades in quality and number of articles. Each article is held securely in place by leather holdings attached to the lining of the bag. A handsomer fitted traveling bag has become popular as a wedding present from intimate friends of the couple. The fittings of one of these bags may include brushes, combs, manicuring outfits, a medicine case with a variety of simple remedies, smelling salts, a liquor flask, a first aid to the injured" kit, a sewing outfit, a collapsible silver drinking cup, and other articles each of which has been especially designed to fit in a traveling bag. All together they may represent the products of a dozen different classes of factories.

The kits arranged for automobile traveling are worthy of a volume in themselves because of the ingenuity some of them represent. They are planned to fit spaces under seats, to be attached to the sides of the machine or placed in any position giving the requisite space. In addition to the articles required for train traveling, the automobilist usually includes equipment for preparing "snacks" along the way, for frequently his route does not permit him to be in reach of a hotel for every meal. Some of these outfits for serving meals for autoists are most elaborate and include fine china, silver and linen. The most popular, however, are those having simpler equipments. White enameled dishes which are not breakable, aluminum cups which are nested together, and even wooden or paper plates appeal to many as more suitable for outdoor meals. Alcohol stoves or lamps usually provide the cooking heat, although an occasional roadside fire adds variety to the culinary modes and special iron kettles to hang from forked sticks are provided in suitable cases for the equipment of the automobile traveler.

Many articles of paper add to the traveler's comfort. Packages are put up which contain stiff paper combs and an assortment of paper towels, wash cloths and napkins which can be thrown away after use, thus avoiding having the care of these articles in more durable forms. Several kinds of paper drinking cups are provided, for no experienced traveler will use the glasses provided on trains. For 10 cents a dozen paper cups folded perfectly flat can be purchased, which in a traveling bag, will take up little more room than a letter. Some travelers carry paper sheets to protect themselves from contact with those used in sleeping berths.

GEORGIA HARDWARE MEN IN SECOND-DAY SESSION

State Meeting Cleared Way Wednesday for New Business on Calendar

Members of the Georgia Retail Hardware association in attendance at the eighth annual convention in Taft hall, heard the annual report of the secretary and treasurer Wednesday afternoon and took up and disposed of all unfinished business to make way for the new business that is awaiting attention.

President T. G. Green announced standing committees on auditing and resolutions and their reports will be presented to the convention at the morning session of the last day.

The remainder of the session was taken up with addresses by R. W. Hatcher, of Wadesville, on "Analytical Demonstration of Mutual Fire Insurance;" G. W. Woodruff, on "Personal Experience with Hardware Mutual Fire Insurance;" C. F. Thomas, of Griffin, who gave a detailed report of the Detroit convention, and J. F. Hall, of Moultrie, who reported on the Jacksonville convention.

The second day's session opened at 10 o'clock Thursday with an address on "The Best System of Collections," by L. L. Hutchinson, of Senoia. Other addresses were in order until noon adjournment.

His address was followed by that of J. B. Johnson, of Conyers, on "Local Hospitality." "The Relations of the Jobber to the Retailer," was discussed by W. A. Parker, of Atlanta, and S. H. Hall, of St. Louis, Mo., spoke on "The Value of Better Accounting Methods to the Retail Merchants."

Each speaker was well received and much interest manifested in the subjects as they were presented. The meeting adjourned at noon and the visitor took part in the Atlanta Retail Works when they were the guests of Mr. Rose at an all-day Georgia barbecue.

The session Thursday afternoon will be executive and many users of insurance will be brushed on. The question box will be a feature.

VISITORS ARE WELCOMED.

In his welcoming address in behalf of the Atlanta chamber of commerce to the hundred delegates in attendance at the eighth annual convention of the Georgia Retail Hardware association, which convened in the Taft hall Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, President Wilmer L. Moore pleaded for the co-operation in securing legislation looking toward an anti-firearm "toting" law and was assured of the association's help in the answering address delivered by F. S. Twitty, a leading merchant of Dublin, Ga.

The remarks of Mr. Moore were in accordance with the expressed desire of the public safety committee of the chamber of commerce, to secure such legislation, and by so doing succeed in decreasing to a minimum crime in Atlanta, which ranks fifth in the southern states.

The speaker called attention to crime in the south as compared to the north, east and west and also in foreign countries and substantiated his assertion with figures. In the United States the percentage of crime to every 100,000 inhabitants taken as an average from the last ten years, shows 4.2 while that in England and Wales for the same period is but one-tenth of 1 per cent. His figures showed the ranking of the five leading southern states follows: Memphis, 63.4; Charleston, 42.3; Savannah, 23.5; Nashville, 9.3 and Atlanta, 28.8. In comparison he showed also figures from other parts of the country as follows: Spokane, 2.7; Pittsburg, 5.3; Detroit, 4.8; Philadelphia, 4.2; Baltimore, 4.8; Newark, 4.7, and New York City, 6.9 per thousand population.

WHERE ATLANTA DOESN'T LEAD

"I am glad to say," declared Mr. Moore, "that Atlanta does not lead the south in this as she does in better things for the ratio is too great and will never be minimized until we secure legislation toward restricting the sale of firearms. The matter the hardware men of Georgia can be incalculable value in the crusade and I appeal to you to assist in the work."

The remarks of Mr. Moore were received with hearty applause, and as had been stated the support of the association was pledged in the address of Mr. Twitty who complimented Atlanta on her crusade against vice and in the interests of morality. "The rest of the country, said Mr. Twitty, "takes off its hat to this city for ridding itself of vice and setting an example for others to follow."

Mr. Twitty followed the welcoming address of Mayor James G. Woodward in behalf of the city. The executive turned the keys over to the visitors, assuring them that Atlanta was as glad to have them as they were to be guests of the city.

CONVENTION CALLED TO ORDER.

The convention was called to order by the president, T. G. Greene, Eatonton, Ga., and the entire morning session was taken up in addresses and a visit to the numerous hardware exhibits that filled the main auditorium. These exhibits of the thirty leading manufacturers of the south are an innovation. An extensive show of hardware products is on exhibition with representatives to show the visitors through their booths.

The opinion expressed early in the week that the vaudeville bill at the Forsyth this week was better in some respects than any other offering of the season, and that it is the sort of show that is best liked by the people who want real vaudeville, is being evidenced by the tremendous attendance that is being recorded.

Maggie Cline is the headline feature of the show. This star among character comediennes is here after an absence of nineteen years, and though she is the oldest artist that has been in vaudeville continuously, her age has nothing to do with her ability, and as she says in one of her songs, "None of them has anything on me."

There are other acts that are interesting. The singing of Sig. Nesi has been the all-week hit of the bill. The young Italian is the owner of a voice of remarkable beauty, and his songs are just the sort that please best. "The Great Howard," in ventriloquist work, and Madden and Fitzpatrick also serve to win favor.

Next week the headline offering will be Lillian Shaw in an all-new series of songs.

Miss Blanche Walsh came to Atlanta Thursday morning, smiled on her audience, played several performances at the Grand, but wouldn't say a word to an interviewer. In fact, Miss Walsh was packed up in a set of little steel boxes, marked "Fragile—Handle With Care," and was let out only for actual work.

It was Miss Walsh's second appearance in Atlanta in the Tolstoy play, "The Resurrection." The first was several seasons ago, when she was heard at the Grand. This time she was only "seen" at the Grand, for her second appearance in the role of Katusha, the peasant girl, was in motion pictures. And she proved that words are not necessary to convey an idea, even to express a delicate shading. There is more in pantomime than the circus clown gets out of it, and the motion picture play has done a great deal to prove it.

"The Resurrection" opened at 10 o'clock at the Grand and will continue until 10:30 o'clock at night, running through this week. It is perhaps the most pretentious picture drama staged in Atlanta, inasfar as dramatic action and really fine acting are concerned. Miss Walsh is surrounded by a company as capable as that which supported her in the original production, and the scenic effects in the picture play are not bound by the narrow limits of a stage setting. The scenes are laid in Russia, from the slums of ancient Moscow to the broad steppes of Siberia, and the camera artist has had full sway in choosing his settings. The success of Miss Walsh in her new field probably will lead other American stars to take up the fascinating, lucrative and comparatively easy work of "playing for the movies."

The four final performances of "St. Elmo" by the Billy Long stock company will take place at the Atlanta tonight, Friday, Saturday matinee and night. This play has attracted considerable attention. It was voted the favorite of Atlanta, and at the first three performances drew larger crowds than have been attracted since the opening of the stock company's season. Miss Long and Mr. Vail especially have won the big audiences by their work, and each performance has been received enthusiastically. The Saturday matinee promises to be the largest of the entire season. Seats for it are on sale at 25 cents each. Popular prices prevail at night.

The success of tabloid musical comedy at the Bijou is seen in the large audiences that are patronizing this play house nowadays. "A Trip to Joyville" last week started this new form of entertainment, playing to the biggest audiences of the season, and the pace is being held this week by "The District Leader," another splendid musical comedy. Differing from most musical comedies, "The District Leader" boasts of a really clever plot that holds the attention of an audience for a good hour and a half, and the many pretty musical numbers that are introduced during the action of the play make the attraction doubly pleasing. The company numbers some twenty people, including an attractive chorus.

During the week matinees will be given every afternoon at 3 o'clock, and night shows at 7:30 and 9. On Saturday the matinees are two, at 2:30 and 4. Next week's attraction will be "The College Girls." It is said to be bright and up to date and to furnish an entertainment that will bring big crowds to the Bijou.

FORMER PENCIL WORKER OUTLINES HIS THEORY

Gustave Haas, of 165 Pulliam street, who at one time worked at the National Pencil factory, and is familiar with the arrangement of the building, has furnished The Journal with his theory of the Phagan murder.

He believes the motive was robbery, and that it was done by a negro who laid in wait for some of the employes to get their pay. Little Mary Phagan happened to be his victim, and according to Haas, he threw the body down the evelvator shaft after a scuffle. Then he strangled the almost lifeless body to death. He had already robbed her of her mesh bag, which he thought contained a lot of money.

Haas believes the sweeper and the night watchman both had their part in the crime.

LOWER CABLES AND BEAR PRESSURE CAUSED DECLINE

Market in New York Closed 3 to 14 Pts. Down From the Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 29.—Cotton opened barely steady on a decline of 16 points on May sold from 4 to 11 points net lower on later months. Trading was active and the market seemed to be more or less irregular. A firmer tone ruled in old crop liquidation and heavy selling of the new crop months. There was active covering around the opening prices and fluctuations were more or less irregular. A bank statement published by a trade paper placed the condition of the crop at 86.5 and estimated an increase of 4.8 per cent over average. New crop months were relatively steady on buying by old crop sellers.

After showing a net loss of about 12 to 19 points on old crop positions and of 5 to 6 points on later deliveries, prices rallied 3 or 4 points and the market at middays was fairly steady. A few additional May and June notices were issued and fluctuations continued steady in the early weakness.

The market was less active during the early afternoon and prices ruled 4 or 5 points up from the lowest with the near crop only 2 or 3 points under last night's closing figures as a result of covering for over the holidays.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, May 29.—Cotton futures eventually ran a decline of 6 to 7 points on poor cables and a favorable weather map. A private bureau condition report of 84.6 per cent was had some effect, but the weekly map from Liverpool stated that pessimistic feeling was growing on the unfavorable weather and threatened labor troubles among the cotton mills. The forecast of continued hot weather in the face of continued dry weather quotes still steady in the early trading in spite of the great amount of rain reported. Early in the end of the first half hour of business prices were 3 to 4 points lower, yesterday's close.

The market was flooded with hearish reports according to the trade at the start of which was that seed was coming on fast, plants were making fast growth and that great progress was being made with cultivation of the crop in the fields. This led to fresh slow selling in early months, which carried prices off 10 points closed to even up over the double and triple bottoms of the American markets that had come into new trades. Toward the middle of the morning prices were 6 to 7 points under yesterday's close, later the decline was lessened to 3 points at noon the market was quiet and steady at a net decline of 3 points.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Democrat says: Excellent rains in the Atlantic states set an end to dry weather talk about that section. A promise now of rather heavy tenders in New Orleans today and a rise in the basis. Also that impending crop advices will be received during the next week or two. Under the circumstances sellers outnumbered buyers and prices declined 10 to 12 points. However the talent is convinced the market is a fine corpse, with a kick, and nobody is now treating it as a dead one. Meanwhile New Orleans May closed at 12.35, a premium of 34 points over July, while July closed at 11.48, a discount of 9 points over New York July. New Orleans May had strength a premium of 80 points over New York May. If there be any reason why these two yesterday had footed bearish sentiment. Favorable weather has continued here, more than

In addition, double-headers in the morning and afternoon hours, for congestion during those hours arising out of construction work in the northern part of the city, are operated and will be continued as necessity demands. Counts, during morning and afternoon rush hours, for the next five months, of actual loads at the peak point of the Buckhead line have been ordered, and will determine the necessity of further relief on this route.

COMMISSION'S ORDER.

Atlanta, May 28, 1913.

In re: Street car service by Georgia Railway and Power company in the city of Atlanta.

Ordered—that the suggestions of the Georgia Railway and Power company, as to increased and improved service during rush hours of travel, on the routes mentioned and in the manner specified in communication of P. S. Arkwright, president, dated May 23d inst., submitted in response to the direction of the commission on this subject under date of May 5, be adopted and approved by the commission, with the following amendment, to-wit:

The rush hour period during which rush hour service is operated on Route No. 10, Peachtree and Whitehall, shall be extended so that the last incoming cars on the Peachtree street portion thereof shall leave the Brookwood terminus and the Piedmont Park terminus not earlier than about 8.55 or 9 o'clock p. m.

It is further directed that the increase and improvements herein approved be put into effect within ten days from this date in so far as the necessary equipment is on hand, and thereafter as new equipment is completed as indicated in the company's communication.

The commission further directs that the Georgia Railway and Power company shall have made and file with the commission, on two week days in each month, for different weeks, during the months of June, July, August, September and October of this year, at two peak points, one on the north and the other on the south side of the center of the city, on

Route 2, Copenhill and West View;

Route 6, Forrest avenue and Capitol avenue.

Route 8, Fair and Marietta streets; and at one ascertained peak point on the following routes, to wit:

No. 19, River line;

No. 20, College Park, East Point and Hapeville,

No. 23, Buckhead line actual counts, during the established morning and afternoon rush hours, of the number of passengers on each car operated during such rush hours at the selected peak points, together with the number of cars and the seating capacity of each.

The commission approves of the course of the Georgia Railway and Power company in not purchasing or building any more single track twenty-eight seat cars, and expresses the conviction that as rapidly as practicable all single track twenty-eight seat cars now operated in Atlanta, shall be retired from service on regular schedules.

In the informal inquiry leading up to this action, the commission has considered only the sufficiency of the present service on established routes, and has not considered any question of extensions or changes in routes.

By order of the commission:

C. M. CANDLER, Chairman.

CAMPBELL WALLACE, Secretary.

Arkwright's Reply to Candler's Suggestion

The letter of Chairman C. M. Candler, of the railroad commission, to President P. S. Arkwright, of the trolley company, suggesting improvements of service on nine of the Georgia Railway and Power company lines, and Mr. Arkwright's reply to the letter of the chairman of the commission have been made public.

In his reply Mr. Arkwright goes into details of the proposed improvements, and he outlined what the trolley company was ready to do.

The letters follow:

MR. CANDLER'S LETTER.

Atlanta, May 8, 1913.

File 8307.

Mr. P. S. Arkwright, President Georgia Railway and and Power Company, Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Sir: Referring to our conference of this morning.

This is to confirm my verbal request that you consider the suggestions made of the need of improved and increased service on Routes Nos. 2, 4, 5, 8, 10, 17, 19, 20 and 23 in this city, and submit to the commission at your earliest convenience such suggestions as to each route as in your judgment will meet the conditions to which I called your attention, or such reasons as you may have as to why such increased and improved service may not be needed on any one of the routes mentioned.

The commission will appreciate your preferred attention to this request.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) C. M. CANDLER, Chairman.

MR. ARKWRIGHT'S ANSWER.

Atlanta, Ga., May 25, 1913.

Hon C. M. Candler, Chairman Railroad Commission of Georgia, Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Sir:

In the various conversations which we have had on the subject of the street railway service of the company you suggested the probable necessity of bettering or increasing the street railway service on the following routes, viz:

Route No. 2—Copenhill to West View.

Route No. 4—Inman Park-Georgia avenue line.

Route No. 5—West Peachtree-South Pryor streets.

Route No. 8—Fair and Marietta streets.

Route No. 10—Peachtree and Whitehall streets.

Route No. 17—Main Decatur line.

Route No. 19—River line.

Route No. 20—College Park.

Route No. 23—Buckhead.

These suggestions, as I understand it, grew out of a study which you had made of the figures submitted to you, showing the register readings during the rush hours over the entire system of the company. These readings were taken during the week of February 23 to March 1, 1913.

The register readings, of course, show the passengers who have ridden on the car along the entire route. All of these passengers are not on the car at one time, but are getting off and on the car and the register reading will not show the maximum load on the car at any one time.

These readings also were taken during the short days of the winter months. As the days grow longer while more people ride on the street cars during the entire day, the rush hour period is prolonged and there is not as much congestion on the cars during the rush hour period during the long days of summer as there is in the shorter days of winter.

In order that we might find out the number of people on the cars of the various routes during the rush hours we had on May 8 and 9 various counts made during the morning, noon and afternoon at the point where there would most likely be the maximum load on the cars.

I send you, herewith attached, statements of the counts of passengers above referred to.

BIG CARS CAN'T PASS.

Route No. 2. This is the longest route in the system of the company. Also there are now being operated on this route twenty-two cars, being more cars than are being operated on any other route in the system. In the rush hours, morning and afternoon, there are being operated fifteen cars per hour, which if the cars were equally spaced would give a frequency of schedule of four minutes. We believe that the schedules of these cars can be rearranged so as to space the cars more evenly and secure a more equal distribution of the load and in this way render more efficient service. At the present time, from counts made, as shown on the statements furnished you, we do not think that the cars are sufficiently crowded to require any additional service at the present time. It may be possible that next fall when the days grow shorter and the travel becomes more congested in the rush hours we should increase this service, and we suggest that this matter be deferred until that time. Your suggestion in regard to this line was that perhaps it would be greatly improved by operating longer or double truck cars on the route. Unfortunately, there are a number of curves on this route along which it is not physically possible for double truck cars to pass each other. These curves are located at the following points:

Peachtree and Broad streets.

Broad and Mitchell streets.

Mitchell street and Madison avenue.

Madison avenue and Nelson street.

Nelson street, just west of the bridge.

Peters street and Leonard street.

Even if we had the double truck cars available for this service, they could not be safely operated on the route because of these numerous points where they would collide if they attempted to pass, and it is almost humanly impossible to prevent such attempts being made if the cars were operated over this route.

INMAN PARK LINE.

Route N. 4. On this route there is now being operated a five-minute headway during rush hours. The southern end of the route from the center of the city along Pryor street is also being traversed by cars on route No. 5. Additional service is hereafter suggested in connection with route No. 5, so that we do not feel that any additional service would be required on the southern end of route No. 4. Additional service on route No. 5 covers all of the south end of this route except Georgia avenue, and Georgia avenue itself is served by a number of other lines in addition to the five-minute service along Georgia avenue.

We suggest that additional service be placed on the Inman Park end of route No. 4 in the morning and afternoon rush hours, extending from the center of the city to Moreland avenue, such additional service to consist of a sufficient number of cars to give to this a ten-minute headway in addition to the five-minute service now being operated on this route. This would require four or five additional cars and would produce a service during morning and afternoon of an average of eight cars per hour with an average interval of three and one-third minutes.

Route No. 5—On this route there is now being given a service of ten-minute intervals, and in addition, the north end of the line has a tripper service of twenty-minute intervals. We suggest that additional service be placed on this line to be operated during the morning and afternoon rush hours between the junction of West Peachtree and Sixth streets to a point on South Pryor street near Bass, to give a ten-minute service, which with the regular ten-minute service already on the route would furnish during the morning and afternoon rush hours a service of five-minute intervals. In addition to the tripper cars now being operated. This will increase the service 100 per cent between Sixth street and Bass street, and will require five additional cars.

MARIETTA STREET.

Route No. 8—There is being operated on this route during morning and afternoon rush hours a five-minute service. This five-minute service up to a short while ago ended at 6:30 o'clock in the afternoon. We have prolonged this tripper service on the eastern end of the line, that is, from the center of the city out Fair street, so that the five-minute schedule is now continued until 7 o'clock. From the counts which we have taken of the maximum loads on these cars, I do not believe that any additional service is reasonably required. A short while ago the service on this route was very irregular on account of the work being done on Marietta street and caused considerable complaint. There was also complaint due to the odor left in the cars from having been occupied by workers in the fertilizer factories. Both of these grounds of complaint, however, have now been remedied, and with the extension of the tripper service until 7 o'clock the service should be reasonably satisfactory.

Route No. 10—On this route there is now being operated a five-minute service. We suggest that additional service be added during the morning and afternoon rush hour operating between Fourteenth street on the northern end and Holderness street on the southern end sufficient to give between these points an additional ten-minute service. In order to furnish this service seven or eight additional cars will be required. When this additional service has been made, there will be operating during the morning and afternoon hours an average of eighteen cars per hour, which will give an average service of three and one-third minutes.

Route No. 17—There is now being operated on this route during the morning and afternoon rush hours a five-minute service. The regular all day ten-minute service at the present time changes to twenty minutes at 8 o'clock p. m. We suggest that this regular ten-minute service be prolonged from 8 o'clock to 9:30 o'clock; also, we suggest that during the morning and afternoon rush hours additional cars be operated on this route between the Atlanta terminus and Hayes Station to give an additional ten-minute service. So that, during the morning and afternoon rush hours between Hayes Station and Atlanta there will be sufficient cars operated to give an average service of three and one-third minutes, and between Hayes Station and Decatur a service of five minutes.

Route No. 19—From the counts of passengers on the cars on this route we do not think that any additional service is reasonably required during the week days. On Sundays we propose that the travel should be taken care of by operating two or three cars on a schedule.

Route No. 20—There is now being operated on this route during the morning and afternoon rush hours between East Point and Atlanta sufficient cars to provide a service with an average frequency of three and three-quarter minutes. We do not believe that any additional service is required on this route at this time, though it may be possible that in the shorter days of next fall, when the travel becomes more congested, some additional service may be necessary.

Route No. 23—There is being operated on this route between Atlanta and the DeKalb county line a regular twenty-minute service. We have recently extended the tripper service on this line from Brookwood to the end of the double track at Dead Man's curve, which tripper service is operated morning, noon and afternoon with twenty minutes' frequency, giving a headway during the rush hours on this route of ten-minute intervals to the end of the double track at Dead Man's curve and the center of the city of Atlanta. Also for one or two schedules in the morning and one or two in the afternoon we operate a double-header, or two cars, for the purpose of affording additional service for workmen engaged in construction work in the northern part of the city. With the service now given and with the extension of the tripper service recently made, hereinbefore referred to, we think that the service now being furnished is reasonably sufficient.

MEETS SUGGESTIONS.

We have passenger cars as follows:

Single truck, 168, of which 1455 are required in regular service, eight are required to replace cars disabled and under repair, leaving fifteen single truck cars available.

Double truck, 61, of which fifty-four are required in regular service, four are required to replace those disabled or undergoing repairs, leaving three available.

P. A. Y. E. cars, 59, of which 49 are required in regular service, four are required to replace those disabled or undergoing repairs, leaving six cars available.

So we have at the present time twenty-four passenger cars of all types (other than open cars) which are available for such increase in service as might be deemed necessary.

Of the P. A. Y. E. cars six have just been constructed and there are also nineteen P. A. Y. E. cars under construction and these we estimate will be completed as follows

One June 10, 1913.
Six June 30, 1913.
Six September 15, 1913.
Six December 1, 1913.

In order to meet the suggestions of increased service above made, we propose to utilize seven P. A. Y. E. cars on route No. 10. On routes 4 and 5 we propose using single truck cars for the additional service until the P. A. Y. E. cars are available, when they are to be substituted for the single truck cars in this additional service.

For the additional service on Route 17 we propose to use the regular double truck suburban cars.

In considering the suggestions you have made for increasing the service, I want you to understand that we approach it in the spirit of meeting your suggestions. It may seem out of place for me to say that we desire to do what you want us to do, inasmuch as the commission has the power, of course, to compel us to do what it deems proper without regard to our wishes or desires. But I say it in order that you may know that we have not considered your suggestions with the view of combating them but from the standpoint of agreeing with them.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) P. S. ARKWRIGHT, President.

take a sip from it. Nearly all the time, though, he was too busy talking or watching the stunts performed by the Gridironers.

"He always made a speech on these occasions and they were among the best he ever made. He always left the dinners when they were about half over, to get back to the White House for work."

Asked whether there had been any discussion in Washington of his drinking habits the witness replied:

"I never heard it discussed during the seven years that he was there."

WOULD HAVE KNOWN IT.

"If it was discussed it must have been outside of Washington, and it was my business to know every rumor that was floating around in that city. It was what I was there for."

"Could he have got drunk on the train without your knowing of it?"

"He could certainly have been slightly affected by liquor without my knowing it, either on the trip or at Oyster Bay."

The witness testified that on the trip to San Francisco the company, by order of the colonel's representatives, did not put the usual stock of liquors aboard the private car.

Mr. Thompson testified that during interviews with the then President they would sit side by side or if standing the president would put a hand on his shoulder.

Mr. Pound asked him if Colonel Roosevelt ever used profanity.

"Never."

"Did he ever use obscene language?"

"No one would dare to utter an obscene word in his presence."

On cross-examination, Attorney Belden developed the fact that on the campaign trips the newspaper men usually occupied a car just ahead of the plaintiff. This was produced in connection with Mr. Thompson's statement that he had never seen Colonel Roosevelt drunk.

Philip Roosevelt, a son of W. E. Roosevelt, who is a first cousin of the former president, a tall-slender man of twenty-one, having been sworn, said he was a newspaper man of New York City.

"How long have you known the plaintiff?" inquired Attorney Pound.

"Well, he's known me all my life."

Laughter followed, and witness changed his reply to: "I've known him as long as I can remember."

Young Roosevelt was cross-examined by Horace Andrews for the defense.

IN COLONEL'S CELLAR.

"Did you ever use liquor in Colonel Roosevelt's home?"

"Yes."

NOT PREPARED FOR WAR, COL. BARTH INSISTS

We Need Ammunition as Well as Men, Army Officer Declares

Lieutenant Colonel Charles H. Barth, adjutant general of the Second brigade of the First division, who has seen active service in the field—especially in the Philippines during the Spanish-American war—reiterates the remarks of Colonel J. T. Van Orsdale, commander of the Seventeenth infantry, stationed at Fort McPherson, in reference to the Japanese situation, as told of exclusively in The Journal a few days ago, and agrees that the Japs could indeed "stay a while" once they set foot on American soil.

"I would like to see the agitators of this trouble in the front ranks of the army should war come," said Colonel Barth, "just to find out if they can fight as well as they can talk.

"July the Fourth orators would have their audiences believe the legendary story of the men who killed the dragon and planted his teeth, from which an army sprang, when they talk of the United States putting 20,000,000 in the field.

"It is a deplorable fact that the people of this country do not appreciate the urgent need of a greater army, one that could withstand any attack from a world power, no matter how powerful. We are in no condition now to fight and it must be borne in mind that armies that can really fight are not made over night. It takes months of service to fit men for the battlefield and not untrained men simply to step into a uniform. And even if we could get the volunteers, where are the firearms coming from? That is a phase of the situation that has not occurred to the minds of those who have it in their heads that the United States is fully equipped to withstand any attack at the present time.

"The Panama canal will be our chief asset when it is completed and I hope the time is not far distant when the waterway from the Atlantic to the Pacific will be in operation. It will be a bulwark of offense in the matter of strategetically moving our fleets from one coast to another."

NEGRO SOLD GOODS OF FIRM TO JUNK DEALER

John White, a colored porter employed by the Wrigley Engraving company, of 25 1-2 West Alabama street, had a grand scheme to get rich quick which resulted in his arrest by City Detectives McGill and Coker Tuesday morning. White was in league with a junk man, allege the police, and was selling various property of the engraving company to the latter. For a week, it is alleged, the junk man drove up to the door of the engraving shop and loaded his wagon with lead, brass and other valuable metals which were carried out by White. On Monday White dickered with a new junk dealer regarding a better price for his plunder. But White got hold of the wrong junk man. The latter told the police, with the result that when White went to dispose of about $30 worth of brass early Tuesday morning the sleuths were lying in wait. They pounced on White just after he had loaded the wagon. White started to run and wanted to fight when captured. He was subdued and taken to the police station, however.

He will return here directly and once more take up his duties at the head of the department before attending the matches during the midsummer.

UNDERPASS COMMITTEE WILL MEET THURSDAY

Forsyth Underpass Closing Waits Merely for Approved Substitutes

A meeting of the special committee of citizens and council members to take in hand the closing of the Forsyth street underpasses will be held at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon if it can be arranged at that hour.

The committee consists of the following:

Citizens—James R. Gray, Clark Howell, Robert F. Maddox and W. F. Winecoff.

Council members—Alderman I. N. Ragsdale, Alderman J. B. Everett, Councilman Claude C. Mason and Councilman Albert Thomson.

The committee was appointed in accordance with a resolution introduced at the last meeting of council by Alderman Ragsdale, and passed by council.

The status of the underpass matter is this: The legislature in 1912 amended the city of Atlanta charter, authorizing the underpasses to be closed, provided the plan of new approaches to the tracks below the bridge was approved by the railroad commission and by the governor. The city already has appropriated the necessary money to pay the cost of the work, and it is available whenever work is ready to be commenced. A number of different plans for new approaches have been drawn.

Thus it remains for the city and the various parties in interest merely to agree on some plan, and get this plan approved by the railroad commission and the governor. Then the underpasses can be closed without further delay.

SPECIAL PROGRAM SUNDAY AT THE CENTRAL BAPTIST

Dr. Ridley announces the following Sunday evening subjects for June: June 1, "Ghosts;" June 8, "Also;" June 15, "Grumblers;" June 22, "Infidels;" June 29, "Mrs. Lot."

SWAM MILE IN POTOMAC RIVER TO ESCAPE POLICE

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Dried out after his swim of more than a mile in the Potomac river in which he outdistanced the police, William Lewis was arraigned in police court today, charged with having sought to dispose of a quantity of lead pipe and lead fittings.

The young man's feat was all the more remarkable in that in diving from the dock to escape two policemen, he carried his heavy plunder with him. Although the policemen took up the chase immediately, Lewis swam so valiantly that he landed at the gavernment navy yard and escaped.

He was captured later.

The public is cordially invited; no admission will be charged, but a free-will offering will be taken during the evening, the proceeds to be used in the social service work that is being done by the ladies of the church.

Interesting Entertainment

Quite a pleasant event was the entertainment given at the Old Ladies' home, 61 West End avenue by the Missionary society of Trinity church on last Tuesday afternoon.

About twenty members of the society including several bright children, went out to the home and rendered beautiful music and recitations.

Special commendation was given to the children who displayed much talent. Every one present declared the afternoon one of the most enjoyable ever spent in the home.

We are making many attractive plans for June, meanwhile we shall conduct a month-end, round-up sale, which shall be a veritable House Cleaning in every Department.

Remember, Please! That the word remnant in this notice does not mean a frayed-end and unusable length or an undersirable left over. To Miss These Chances Will Do Yourself a Great Injustice

THE EVENING STORY

Copyright 1913 By W. Werner

DIVINE GIFT

The first time Ellen met Chan Macleish was on an October afternoon. She was gathering an armful of bright-hued leaves to carry home when he came whistling by with a gun on his shoulder. They glanced at each other curiously, the slender, white girl and the strapping, brown young man. Then, because they were both country born and needed no other introduction, he had leaned his gun against a tree and broken for her a gorgeous branch far beyond her reach. So they fell to talking, and he told her that his folks had lately moved to the farm on the hill, a fact she had already heard, and told him that she lived in the house just visible on the rise of ground. After this exchange of confidence they felt well acquainted. He walked home with her. Six weeks later they became engaged.

He was Ellen's first lover, the first to an besides her father she had ever known intimately. She fancied him all things she would have him and out-argued her parents' feeble objections. Long before spring they were married and she went to live on the hill farm with his folks.

There was the usual result of this amalgamation of young and old. Ellen was pronounced too young, thriftless and headstrong, and Chan upheld her only feebly. In the end he bought the farm and his parents moved away.

Ellen hoped then she was going to be really happy. She was growing slowly to know the real man she had married. She was coming to a fresh realization of herself. Her outlook upon life astonished and terrified her. She felt so inadequate. Yet one thing impressed her rigidly—she must do her duty; she must be the wife, the mother, her own mother had been before her.

She perceived that already she and Chan had got far apart. When the child was born they must love each other again as they had. Chan was not wicked; he was merely the product of common blood—a heedless, selfish fellow, with an abounding conceit attending every word and action. As Ellen withdrew her personality he thrust his forward ever more and more arrogantly. He domineered, bullied her. His attitude was that of master. He treated her, his dog, and his horses very much alike.

The child, a boy, was born one spring morning. Ellen thought that Chan will be pleased." In her heart she knew she had hoped for a daughter.

The child grew lustily in the image of his father. But he brought Chan no nearer to Ellen, and with a sickening, disappointing sense of failure she realized that she and Chan were of different fiber.

The little hill farm was well worn when Chan took it, and the wearing process simply continued as time went by. For Chan was no farmer. Ellen's work was very heavy, often beyond her strength. She had left off girlishness and taken on womanliness too quickly, and a womanliness that saddened and silenced her.

Another child came, and another, and another, until there were six sons in all. And never the girl for whom she prayed ever with increasing intensity. For many years she lay down at night and rose in the morning with appeal on her lips. "Lord, send me a daughter."

Her own mother died a few years after Ellen went to the hill farm. And it was her keen longing for somebody of her own sex who would understand that made her yearn so mightily for a daughter.

The boys resembled their father. They were lithe, brown, hawk-eyed, curiously untamed in manner. They loved to hunt and fish and roam the woods. They did not care for education or society. Not one of them was like Ellen in look or act or disposition. She was still the alien among them, the only one of her kind. They companioned with her father, but her they avoided. It was as if a placid hen had hatched a brood of partridges, which ran from her as soon as they could go. She fed them, saw that their clothes were neat and clean; mothered them as much as they would let her. But often her heart wearied saddened with unspeakable loneliness when she looked upon them.

They were sitting at supper one fall night when the oldest, Rob, came in late from his hunting. He set his gun in the corner and hung up his coat and cap. Chan lounging on the table over his plate, spoke to his son.

"Where's them rabbits?"

"I didn't shoot any." The boy's manner was diffident, embarrassed. He came to the table and sat down, but he pushed the food away as if he were not hungry.

"There's some new folks on your old place, ma," he announced.

"I wonder who they are," she said.

One of the younger boys spoke quickly, with an amused, quizzing glance at his brother. "I know. Their name's Borden. And they've got a girl. That's why Rob didn't get any rabbits."

"Shut up!" growled Rob, but he colored.

So there was a girl on the old place where she herself had been a girl—all too briefly, as she now knew. For some years—ever since her father's death—the little farm had lain untended. Now again it was tenanted. Ellen felt a strange interest in the new people.

But Rob would tell her nothing, though she had an idea, as the days went by, that he knew much. He hunted more than ever that fall, but infrequently brought home game. Did he see the Borden girl on these excursions, she wondered that he always came home so silent, so absorbed?

He had changed materially in this last few weeks—plunged into manhood, as it were, the kind of manhood that had been Chan's that fateful day when they met under the frosted leaves.

One day she heard sixteen-year-old Tom say to his father: "Mebby you'd like to know what Rob does when he pretends to go hunting. He's canoodling with Borden's girl. I saw them myself yesterday hanging over the stone wall together."

"Oh!" thought Ellen, "I must see that girl if she is to be my daughter."

She felt a stab of pain at the recollections the last word called forth.

The next afternoon Rob went to town with his father and the other boys were out of the way. She made herself tidy, put on her poor best gown, and flung a shawl over her shoulders. She knew so well the way down the hill through the woods to the boundary line between the two farms—the stone wall. Perhaps she should find the girl waiting there. If not she would go on to the house. There was nothing in a mere neighborly visit.

But there was no one at the wall when she reached it. Ellen, breathless with unaccustomed walking, sat down upon it to rest before going on to the house, just visible through the trees. As she sat there she had a rustling among the fallen leaves. Turning her head, half-startled, she saw a girl coming toward her down the little path hedged with wild aster and celandine. At a little distance from her the girl paused, startled perhaps by her first sight of Ellen. They took time to get a good look at each other. The girl was tall and handsome. She had red hair that gleamed, glowing cheeks and blue eyes, radiating health, joy, and happy expectation. Ellen felt her pulses stir at sight of this glorious apparition.

"Come here!" she called. "You're not afraid of me, are you?"

The girl came to her. "No, I'm not afraid of you. But I don't know you," she said.

"I'm Rob McLeish's mother."

"He doesn't look like you." There was straightforward simplicity in the words.

"I have six sons and not one of them looks like me," Ellen sighed.

The girl studied her gravely. Then she leaped to the wall and sat down close beside Ellen. "You never had a daughter?"

"No."

"And you wanted one, perhaps?"

"Wanted one!" The words were a cry. And then, because the blue eyes, the hand that touched hers, were so genuinely sympathetic, Ellen burst into confession. What she said she knew not, but the girl knew, for her eyes were full of tears as she flung out both arms in swift, sweet appeal.

"Let me be your daughter," she cried.

They held each other close.

"You are going to marry Rob?" Ellen questioned.

"Yes."

"Ah, do you know what that means?" Ellen asked. "I could not let you have him without trying to tell you something. Look at me. I was once a girl like you. I have lived through much. Can you live through as much?"

"I can, for I love him. But I shall not have to. I shall have you. You had nobody."

"No, I shall have you."

"We shall have each other. I never knew my mother. She died when I was born. I have wanted a mother as much as you have wanted a daughter. We were meant for each other. Listen! I love Rob. I am not afraid of life. I'm very strong and courageous. I shan't die or give up or break down. Will you trust me—mother?"

She smiled for all her earnestness. Hope and a strange, new gladness in life came to Ellen suddenly. She leaned forward and kissed tenderly the beautiful face so near her own.

"I trust you—my daughter," she said.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

Spotty the turtle stared and stared and stared until it seemed as if his eyes simply would pop out of his funny little head. Of course he could believe his own eyes, and yet—and yet—well, if anybody else has seen what he was looking at and had told him about it he wouldn't have believed it. You see, he couldn't have believed it because—why, because it didn't seem as if it could be really and truly so.

He wondered if the sun shining in his eyes made him think he saw more than he really did see, so he carefully changed his position. It made no difference. Then Spotty was sure that what he saw was real and that he had found the trouble in the Laughing Brook which had caused it to stop laughing and the Smiling Pool to stop smiling.

Spotty the Turtle was feeling pretty good. In fact, Spotty was feeling very good indeed, because he had been the first to find out what was the matter with the Laughing Brook. At least, he thought that he was the first, and he was of the little people who live in the Smiling Pool. Only Ol' Mistah Buzzard had been before him, and he didn't count because his wings are broad and all he had to do was to sail over the Green Forest and look down. The ones who really counted were Billy Mink and Little Joe Otter and Jerry Muskrat and Grandfather Frog, who had started out with Spotty the Turtle, and who had selfishly left him far, far behind because he crawls so slowly. But he had kept on crawling. Billy Mink had stopped for a nap. Little Joe Otter had stopped to pla. Jerry Muskrat had stopped to eat. Grandfather Frog had stopped for a sun-nap. But Spotty the Turtle had kept right on going, and now here he was the first one to find the cause of the trouble in the Laughing Brook. Do you wonder that he felt proud and very happy?

Keeping at it, that's the way
Spotty won the race that day.

But now Spotty was beginning to wish that some of the others would hurry up. He wanted to know what they thought. He wanted to talk it all over. It was such a surprising thing that he could make neither head nor tail of it himself, and he wondered what the others would say. And now the long black shadows were creeping through the Green Forest, and if they didn't get there pretty soon they would have to wait until the next day.

So Spotty the Turtle found a good place to spend the night, and then he sat down to watch and wait. Right before him was the thing which he had found and which puzzled him so. What was it? Why, it was a wall. Yes, sir, that is just what it was—a wall of logs and sticks and mud, and it was right across the Laughing Brook where the banks were steep and narrow. Of course the Laughing Brook could laugh no longer; there couldn't enough water get through the wall of logs and sticks and mud to make even the beginning of a laugh. Spotty wondered what lay behind that wall, and who had built it, and what for and a lot of other things. And he was still wondering when he fell asleep.

Next story: "The Pond in the Green Forest."

Gray Hair Is Not Compulsory

It is almost pathetic when a woman's hair begins to fade and she realizes that it is turning gray, and yet there is no one to blame but herself for neglecting it, for the hair responds very quickly to the proper care and treatment. The hair turns gray because it has lost vitality, and when you pull out the first few white hairs as they appear you simply enlarge the cells and coarsen your hair, and it will turn gray more quickly than if left alone.

For many years we have handled all of the good hair preparations and we believe there is nothing better to be had anywhere than our Robinnaire Hair Dye. It is not the ordinary vulgar bleach or artificial coloring. We should have named it a Restorative, because it simply restores your hair to its own original color and beautiful healthy condition, and there is no reason why you should hesitate to use it if your hair is fading and losing its color.

It is our own laboratory product and we guarantee it to be pure and harmless. It has been in use for over a quarter of a century, and we have yet to receive the first complaint, but we can show you hundreds of letters, unsolicited, telling of the wonderful results obtained from it.

No woman need have gray hair undesired, if she will give a little time and care to its treatment. The hair always responds quickly. Robinnaire Hair Dye is easily applied, and it is non-sticky and does not stain either skin or scalp. If you want to see what it will do, get a 25c trial size and use it on a small part of your hair, say back of the ears. You will be surprised and pleased.

"Jiffy" goes at a sink like this: When it becomes greasy, especially one of those made of glazed ware, instead of spending hours of labor with soda water endeavoring to clean it, sprinkle some Spotless Cleanser on a piece of flannel or coarse cloth and rub the sink thoroughly with it. Wash with hot water, then flush with cold water. This treatment will also clean the pipes. A little Spotless Cleanser mixed with cold water and thrown into a sink will disinfect it.

MRS. BENNETT SAYS "PUBLISH"

Thinks Her Letter, Made Public, Might Result in Some Good. All Ladies Should Read

Henderson, Tex.—In a letter from this place, Mrs. T. V. Bennett says: "Last November I was taken very sick, and had two doctors. They doctored me for most everything that could be thought of, and at last they told me it would be necessary to have an operation. I couldn't give in to this, although I was suffering great pain.

Finally, I decided to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I hadn't used it but a short time before I was up, feeling good, and able to do my work.

I am still getting along fine, and can recommend Cardui, the woman's tonic, to all suffering women. I shall always praise this great medicine.

If you think my experience would be of any benefit to any suffering woman, you are at liberty to publish it."

Cardui, the woman's tonic, is strictly a woman's medicine, made up of pure, harmless, vegetable ingredients which act directly on the womanly constitution.

It stimulates the weakened organs, and helps build them up to health and strength.

We receive numerous letters, every day, similar to the one above. If it has benefited so many thousands of other women, why shouldn't it do the same for you?

Give Cardui a trial.

Rawling-Wilcox

Miss Katherine Rawling and Mr. Philip Wakeman Wilcox were married Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Rawling, in Druid Hills, the ceremony being performed by Bishop Leete.

The event was one of much beauty and interest, though quiet. Mr. Sidney Wilcox was the only attendant.

Palms and vines and many flowers beautified the rooms, the library, where the ceremony took place, being particularly attractive. A mass of foliage made a dark background for the bridal party, and the fronds of ferns and palms reached halfway to the ceiling. White rosebuds showed in pretty contrast to the green, and valley lilies contributed beauty and fragrance to the scene. Tiny lights burned half-hidden, among the ferns and variegated plants which banked the mantels, and large clusters of white roses were used everywhere.

The bride wore a handsome gown of white brocade, to which trimmings of old point lace gave much distinction. Her veil was also of lace. Her bouquet was of bride roses and valley lilies.

During the ceremony and afterwards an orchestra played from a screened position in the hall.

After the ceremony a buffet supper was served. The decorations in the dining room were in pink, the table presenting a beautiful appearance with its masses of roses and other decorations. The centerpiece was a basket of roses, the handle being festooned with tulle into which roses were caught. Silver candlesticks supported rose-shaded candles, and all the minor details were in rose-color.

Mrs. Rawling wore a becoming gown of gray charmeuse veiled with pale pink chiffon and trimmed with real lace.

Mrs. Sidney S. Wilcox, of New York, mother of the groom, was gowned in white Brussels lace touched with lavender trimmings.

As the bride left for her wedding journey to the east she was showered with pink rose petals. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox will occupy the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rawling while the latter are in Europe. They will sail June 12.

Miss Norton Entertains

Miss Marguerite Norton was hostess at a delightful party Tuesday evening at her home in Clarkston in compliment to Miss Ollie Johnson and Mr. Robert Floyd, whose wedding will be an event of June.

The centerpiece on the dining room table was a plateau of pink sweet peas, a tall vase of pink roses rising from the center. The candelabra held pink tapers and the mints, ices and cakes were in pink and white.

The guests included about forty friends.

ATLANTIC BEACH

THE NEW CITY BY THE SEA

Beach property for residences, for summer homes or for investment is most desirable, it is scarcest and, consequently, the most valuable.

The advance in beach property at the most famous resorts in the United States has had few, if any, parallels, excepting in the phenomenal increases in values of city business property in the most favorable locations.

Long Beach, California, Los Angeles' beautiful suburb, had seven hundred citizens seven years ago; now it has forty-five thousand and the increases in property values have corresponded. Atlantic City, New Jersey, beach property and lots facing the beach, that sold by the lot for one thousand dollars a few years ago, now command ten thousand dollars. They have advanced literally one thousand per cent in less than ten years, some of them in five years.

These are facts:

The Atlantic Beach Corporation has practically all the beach property north of St. Augustine for more than a hundred miles that is suitable or available for residence sites. The rest is in private hands or can not be used for such purpose without enormous and practically prohibitive expense. It has ready for building now several such lots overhanging the finest ocean beach in the world. It will have no more this year, probably not for several years.

Atlantic Beach, in addition to its location by this splendid ocean front, has a supporting inland population of two million people, to whom it is nearer than any other beach resort. Birmingham citizens, for instance, spend twenty-eight hours and make several changes of cars to reach their favorite North Carolina seaside resort. They come to Jacksonville in fourteen hours with no change of cars, and Jacksonville is thirty minutes' ride from Atlantic Beach. From other inland southern cities the difference is proportional.

Atlantic Beach is the logical place, both from its location and from natural conditions and attractions, for the South's greatest resort. What is logical comes to pass. Atlantic Beach will be this resort—the ideal and most beautiful city on the Atlantic Coast. Property values will increase---that is logical, too---just as they have at Long Beach and Atlantic City.

Now is the time to buy, whether it be for a home or for an investment.

Ninety-six thousand dollars was the aggregate of sales of Atlantic Beach property to Monday, May 19. It was eighty-eight thousand dollars on Saturday night, the seventeenth. If you could see this property you would know why.

Write for more information. It will be worth while to know a good deal more about it.

Band Concert At Motordrome During Sunday

Riders Are Now Going Around the Track at Fast Clip—Another Accident Came Near Resulting Seriously

A punctured tire all but caused a tragedy out at the Motordrome Wednesday afternoon, and as a by-product of a narrow escape the six or eight thousand enthusiasts who gathered for the free show in the afternoon saw the most sensational exhibition of daring riding that ever fell to the lot of an Atlanta audience.

Freddie Luther was the victim of the puncture. Riding his Indian machine at a lightning clip—somewhere between eighty and ninety miles an hour—he punctured a back tire. Luckily for him, it was a back tire. In the board track game the man who blows a rear tire takes a tremendous chance of going down; the man who blows a front tire DOES go down. And going down at faster-than-express-train speed on a tilted oval is bad business, and often enough means sudden death.

When the wind went out of Luther's tire the steel rim went down on the boards, and a fine humping match was on. They have no brakes on the racing machines and no earthly way of stopping except by dragging the feet, which has about as much effect at eighty-five miles an hour as winking the eye. In case of a blow-out there is nothing to do but ground the magneto, which cuts off the motor, and let her roll. This Luther did, and the frail craft bucked, jumped along the wash-tub track in a fashion that brought the hearts into the mouths of the spectators.

Finally Luther wrestled down the machine and eased back to the paddock. Then, not contented with having risked his neck once that day, he borrowed a road machine that was good for about seventy-five miles an hour, got on the boards, and went back on the track. He wanted to strengthen his eyes, he said—and it is a fact that board track racers must ride constantly to keep their eyes in shape for the tremendous strain on night racing under electric lights at break-neck speed.

No sooner was Luther started than he mounted the sharp bank, took off his hands, folded them across his chest and rode the very top of the 58 degree bank at a speed of practically seventy-five miles an hour without hands.

When the spectators saw what was going on they let out a burst of cheering that shook the track, and they cheered and applauded for minutes at a time while the "Panther Kid" rode round and round on the fearsome bank, machine wide open, hitting a speed considerably better than a mile a minute.

TRACK BANKED RIGHT.

When Jack Prince observed what was going on he only grinned. "That's nothing at all," said Jack. "Why don't he shut his eyes? Then he'd be doing something. I'll tell you what the track is banked right. All you have to do is to get the proper speed and get on the right bank, and the machine will just steer itself. It couldn't run off if it tried."

There were all sorts of wild doings at the track Wednesday. Henry Lewis, the "rough rider," who tried to break his neck Tuesday, came back after more sun Wednesday, but had no more trouble with the treacherous inclines than a velocipede rider on a cement sidewalk. He will be one of the wonders of next week's race meet. Harry Glenn, the local lad, did some great riding, and promises to develop into a wonder.

Jack Prince gave orders yesterday for Wedemeyer's band, and it will play Sunday at the motordrome from 4:30 to 6 o'clock. All the track officials and all the riders will be there to show visitors around and to explain the track and the racing machines.

Tickets will go on sale Monday at Shepherd's Segar shop, corner of Alderwood and Pryor. The prices will be twenty-five and fifty cents. The "bleacher price" will admit to the infield, the four-bit seats will be around the top of the arena. For the colored population there will be a roped-off section of the infield.

The plant will seat eight or ten thousand people on the grandstand and there is room for sixty thousand in the infield, so there is no chance of overloading the place.

Tennessean Sure to Win

By Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 29.—Four Tennessee players, Mrs. E. W. Daley, Nashville; Miss Anne Watkins, Chattanooga, and Mrs. G. Jones and Mrs. S. H. Phillips, Memphis, remained as contenders for southern championship honors at the end of Wednesday's round of match play in the tournament of the Women's Southern Golf association. In the semi-finals Mrs. Jones, the present title holder, will meet Miss Watkins and Mrs. Daley will oppose Mrs. Phillips.

Mrs. Jones defeated Mrs. T. B. Paine, Atlanta, 6 up and 4 to play; Mrs. Daley won over her teammate, Miss Jeannette Ackle, 5-4; Mrs. Phillips defeated Mrs. T. H. Seymour, Nashville, 5-3, and Mrs. J. D. Varnell, Knoxville, was eliminated by Miss Watkins, 6-4.

In the second flight Mrs. C. F. Meeban, Montgomery, Ala., is the only visiting player who will compete in the semi-finals. The third flight was narrowed to the finals with Mrs. R. P. Jones, of Atlanta, and Mrs. C. A. Meeborn, Memphis, contenders for first honors.

FIRST GAME WITH DOBBS

Brady and C. Brown Will Probably Work in Thursday's Battle

The Montgomery club is now in Atlanta for a four-game series with the Crackers. One double bill, probably on Saturday, is to be contested.

The opening game takes place at 3:45 o'clock Thursday afternoon. On Friday a double-header is scheduled, but it is more than probable that this two-play affair will be staged on Saturday. Permission has already been secured from President Kavanaugh to make this change, and all that is now needed is the consent of Manager Johnny Dobbs. It is thought this will be secured.

In the opening game with the Dobbsers it is expected that Manager Smith will work King Brady with Chapman again receiving. Opposed to this battery will be C. Brown and Pat Donahue.

Johnny Dobbs and his club have been going a bit badly of late and the Crackers have a mighty good chance to better their standing. The Atlanta bunch is now in third place, just half a game back of Nashville and a half a game ahead of Memphis. This makes the going rather tight and a win is badly needed.

VALDOSTA, Ga., May 29.—Valdosta downed Americus easily in a double-header, 9 to 5 and 8 to 1. The games were quite different from the thirteen-inning scoreless tie game.

Valdosta's fierce hitting did it, five triples, two doubles and eight safeties being garnered off the Americus pitchers. Elrod went the whole route for Valdosta. Wolfe pitched the first and a part of the second, Dacey finishing it up. The home team made a clean sweep of the series.

DePalma After Motor Honors

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 29.—Although the distinguished foreign drivers are centers of attraction at the Indianapolis motor speedway, Ralph DePalma, the young Italian-American who won the hearts of all motor fans last year, still stands high in public regard. DePalma is working consistently to prepare himself for the 500-mile race which will be held at the speedway May 30, and whenever he ventures on the track in his yellow Mercer car, the crowds which fill the grandstands cheer him with a vigor that is reminiscent of last year, when after having his engine break down as the daring driver was on his last lap, he attempted to push his big Mercedes across the goal. At that time DePalma became an established favorite, and his present attempt to retrieve the fortune he lost by not being able to finish the 1912 race will be watched with keen interest.

DePalma is by instinct a scientific race driver. He possesses those qualities which best fit him for the hazardous career he has mapped out for himself. He has unlimited nerve, and accidents cannot cause him to falter. When injured at Milwaukee last year his condition was so grave that it was feared he could never race again. But owing to the fact that DePalma does not know the meaning of dissipation and that he is in prime physical condition all the time, he rallied from the shock and his first thought was whether he would be able to secure a suitable mount for the race he has now entered. On the other hand, he is not fool hardy, but knows how to use the brains with which he has been plentifully endowed.

Newnan Leads In Attendance

NEWNAN, Ga., May 29.—The official figures show that Newnan is leading the Georgia-Alabama league in attendance, 12,000 persons having purchased tickets to see games.

Manager Paden, of the Gadseden club, stated Saturday that the Newnan team had the best support of any team that his men had played this season, and that Newnan had one of the best batting teams that this league could supply.

Bad news to the effect that LaGrange would probably drop out of the league was whispered here, following a meeting of that association last Saturday night, in which a statement was given by the secretary and treasurer, that LaGrange was far behind with players' salary and other expenses.

Boston Club Wins

HIT BY FOUL BALL FAN GETS DAMAGES

KANSAS CITY, May 29.—Charles Elding, an attorney, has been awarded $3,500 damages against the local American association baseball management in the circuit court, for injuries received while watching a ball game game here last year. He alleged that his nose was broken and his eyesight injured by a foul ball that hit him while he was sitting in the grand stand.

Pennsy Track Team is Off

PHILADELPHIA, May 29.—Twenty-two members of the University of Pennsylvania track team left here today for Cambridge, where they will compete in the intercollegiate championships. "Mike" Murphy was forbidden by his physicians to accompany the team, and the athletes will be in charge of Thomas Haydeck, who has been acting coach during Murphy's illness.

The veteran trainer, however, expects to go to his summer farm in Westboro, Mass., and keep in touch with the team from that point. Captain Mercer, who has been out of condition because of a heavy cold, has regained some of his form of last year and hopes to make a good showing both in the broad jump and in the 220.

THE parallel lines of "HARVARTON" and "YALETON" collars make them entirely distinctive.

Both are great favorites with College men. Both made with the famous "Slip-Over" button-holes—can't tear out.

Atlanta Good At Stealing

While the Carckers were slightly outhit, .269 to .258, in the series with the New Orleans Pelicans the local bunch managed to win two of the three games and score 14 runs to 11 for the Frank bunch. At fielding the locals also led, the average of the Crackers being .933 against .940 for New Orleans.

The home club played good all around ball, ramming out hits hat amounted to 33 bags aagingst 31 for the visiors. At stealing bags a most noticeable improvement was noted. The Crackers swiped nine bags against three for the visitors. At sacrifice hitting the locals got away with four aagainst three for New Orleans. The Cracker hurlers fanned 11 and walked 14 while the Pel flingers fanned 14 and walked 13.

NOT A WIN IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, May 29.—The rain of the past two days which prevented two double-headers with the Boston club has clinched for the New York Americans a record which is said never to have been equalled in major league baseball, going into June without winning a game on home grounds.

The Yankees moved on to Philadelphia today with the expectation that Peckinaugh, the new shortstop from Cleveland, would make his debut with Frank Chance's men and perhaps fill a gap in the infield which critics say has been one of the most serious defects of the New York club's work this season.

PRICE QUITS LOCAL CLUB

Southpaw Says He Is Through, Weaver Goes With New Orleans Team

Southpaw Gilbert Price announced Wednesday afternoon that he is through with baseball, and backed up his announcement by sending to the club house for all his belongings. It is probable that he will accept a position with a local firm and retire from the game.

The main reason for Price's determination to quit the game is a puzzle. He has been going mighty good in the box of late and was regarded as Atlanta's most reliable hurler. He is a glutton for work, and has turned out more games than any other member of the staff. He is in grand shape right now, and should be able to pitch mighty good ball with the club playing at its present clip.

With the announcement from Price that he was through with the game came the sale of Pitcher Orlie Weaver to the New Orleans team. Buck, as he is known to the fans, left with the Pel outfit Wednesday night, and the next time he is seen in Atlanta he will be wearing a Pel uniform. Buck says he is right and has been for a week or more, and if he is then watch out for some mighty good flinging.

Musser's Work Bit Too Good; Chapman Good

Wilson Is Beaten 4 to 0 in Final Game—New Catcher Looks to Be Right Man for Catcher's Job

With Paul Musser showing a flash of his real ability the New Orleans club did not have a chance to score against the Crackers and the home team stabbed off a shutout. The count was 4 to 0, with Wilson getting the whitewash.

A bit of timely swatting by Welchonce, Bailey, Long and Bisland paved the way for the Cracker runs. Each of this bunch hit at the most opportune moment, making every bingle count for something. The fielding of the Cracker club was also right at par, everything hit toward any member of infield or outfield being handled in perfect shape.

The work of Catcher Chapman, Atlanta's new player, was most encouraging. This lad keeps up a rapid fire line of talk which is great. He is always boosting the pitcher and much of Munsser's good work is attributed to this one cause. The receiver also has a mighty good arm and appears able to hit 'em hard.

Pitcher Wilson came in for a bit of roasting for his apparent attempt to bean Wallace Smith. He tried this trick more than once, but Smith was too much for him. Wilson is young at the game yet and has a lot to learn about the national game.

Open Race Track For New Yorkers

NEW YORK, May 29.—After a lapse of more than two years in horse racing in New York state, due to the obstacles of anti-betting laws passed during the administration of Governor Hughes, a revival of turf activities starts tomorrow, with the opening of an extended day meeting at Belmont park, on Long Island.

The West Chester Racing association, under the auspices of which the meet will be held, and other associations which have planned meets at other tracks, circulated today announcements that the law in relation to bookmaking and betting would be enforced. Notice was served that if any attempt was made at bookmaking as it is feared there may be among the crowds within the inclosure where only $1 admission is charged, this popular priced section will be closed.

The right of individuals to bet among themselves will not be interfered with by the police, it is understood, if only oral wagers are made. The feature of the opening day will be the Metropolitan handicap.

THE SPORTLIGHT
BY GRANTLAND RICE

M'CARTY VS. FATE.

McCarty, as suggested before, went hunting for "another piece of soft change" and encountered—Fate.

In every athletic contest—boxing, football, baseball and the rest of it—there is always this chance of Fate taking charge and ending the deal. It's a part of the game—a part against which there is no defense where those who Fight or those who Play, must take their change.

It is no new angle. Three hundred years ago James Shirley, the English poet, called this turn of the game in these lines:

The glories of our blood and state
Are shadows—not substantial things;
There is no armor against Fate—
Death lays his icy hand on kings;
Scepter and crown
Must tumble down
And in the dust be equal made
With the poor crooked scythe and spade.

Some men with swords may reap the field,
And plant fresh laurels where they kill;
But their strong nerves at last must yield—
They tame but one another still;
Early or late
They stoop to Fate,
And must give up their murmuring breath
When they, pale captives, creep to death.

The garlands wither on your brow—
Then boast no more your mighty deeds;
Upon Death's purple alter now
See where the victor-victim bleeds,—etc.

TO FATE—

"Early or late, they stoop to fate." Jim Jeffries, mightiest of them all, living on with a vanished prestige; Jack Johnson, his successor, is struggling to keep from wearing stripes, discredited and despised; and now McCarty, hailed as Johnson's successor, has passed out over the long road, to be forgotten within a month.

McCarty's death leaves a weird ring situatin. It deposits, at the top of the crest, a third-rater and a dub—a punching bag of third-raters up to one wild blow. From John L. Sullivan to Arthur Pelkey—Good-night and good-bye. There is no answer.

AVAST—BELAY—OLD F. P. A.

(For pity's sake, please come and take your blamed contribs of prose and song the next floor up, where they belong.)

Said Leon Ames to John McGraw:
"You didn't treat me nice, ole Saw."
"Huh! Being nice don't win no games."
Said John McGraw to Leon Ames.

At the close of this last week Ty Cobb was batting .511. Which shows what lack o spring training and what a late start will do to a guy who otherwise might be of some service to his club.

Fifty dollar fine for a ball player talking to a reporter? Very well; how about $50 fine for a reporter printing anything about a ball player? The answer is—attendance 276.

The Cub magnate is generous beyond belief, however. There will be no fine attached to a reporter talking to him. Think of the cruel and inhuman punishment he might have put over by forbidding any reporter to ever converse with his highness! Think of the broken hearts and wrecked lives and blighted hopes and crushed dreams that would have followed such an edict! Yet there are those who would say that he is not fair and just and wise, showing to what malignancy base envy may rise.

In the future, if the N. L. is to stand for C. Webb's presence much longer, he may turn to this: "Mike Jackson, .432 hitter and daring base runner, was released today; he was caught talking to a baseball writer after winning the game with six triples and a home run."

The Phillies, as he understands it, will never win the pennant because they will again become broken up. But suppose they don't? Suppose they decide to hang around the ball field in place of the hospital this season? Who'll be the goat and pave the way for an answer?

The Phillies are soon starting west "where the sun does down." But the main query is, do the Phillies intend to emulate the sun?

JIMMY JOHNSTON MAKES HIT BY WORK ON COAST LEAGUE

Jimmy Johnston, the Chattanooga kid now playing with San Francisco, is now burning up the Pacific Coast league juice as he did the Southern last year. He is out after base stealing honors in that circuit, and bids fair to break the world's record for a season, having more than 200 games in which to do it. The Los Angeles Herald in a recent issue, thus bouquets the old local leaguer.

"Jimmy Johnston came to the Seals from the Chicago White Sox, heralded as a speed merchant with a generous supply of goods at his disposal, and so far he has not caused any of his boosters the mental anguish of failing to live up to his advance notices. Johnston is displaying more speed on the bases every day and it is freely predicted before the season is a month older Johnston will be leading the organization by a safe margin in the matter of purloining bases.

"In the Southern association, where he played last season, Johnston pilfered eighty-one bases in 135 games, and in a league like this, which plays almost twice as many games, Johnston ought to set up a new record for stolen bases.

"Jimmy has been a welcome addition to the Seals' ranks. He is playing the outfield in great style and cutting off any number of hits by his fast fielding and throwing. In yesterday's game Johnston nipped Metzer, of the Angels, at the plate on as pretty a peg as has been seen at Washington park this season.

"Del Howard is counting heavily on Johnston in the Seals' fight for recognition as a pennant contender."

Chattanooga Golfers

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 29.—Chattanooga golfers are now ready for the southern golf tournament and expect to make a strong showing at medal, match and team play. Probably a dozen golfers will be entered when play is begun at Alabama's capital. Garner Watkins, Scott Probasco, Warren Dewees, Ernest Martin, Ted Coy and several other young players are showing great form at present. Great things are expected of Watkins following his consistent play in recent meets, and the youngster is expected to startle the natives in the big tourney.

Skating Union Meets

CHICAGO, May 29.—Allen D. Blanchard, president of the International Skating Union of America, left last night for New York to attend a meeting of the organization on Saturday. He will recommend that the figure skating rules of the union be harmonized with those of the International Skating Union of Europe. He believes that Americans would have captured the foreign championships last season if the rules had been modified.

Handicap Rule Causes Fight

Rule in English Club May Result in Americans Not Entering Meets

ST. ANDREWS, May 29.—While play was proceeding in the tournament for the amateur golf championship of the world today an important question affecting any future American entries was being discussed at the annual meeting of the committee of delegates from all the Scottish, English and Irish clubs, which settled the conditions governing entries for the championship. The question arose owing to the difference between the British and American systems of handicapping.

While in the United States no player is rated higher than the scratch, in the British Isles the plus system prevails.

The strongest players are sometimes rated as high as "plus 6," and consequently have six strokes added to their scores in any handicap medal game.

The first clause in the regulations for the amateur championship provides that the competitions shall be open to amateurs rated scratch or better in their clubs. This regulation, if it were strictly enforced, would bar every American golfer except Jerome D. Travers, the former amateur champion of the United States.

The champion, however, adopted a broad and sportsmanlike view, and although no definite action was taken, owing to the necessity of giving three months' notice of such a change, it was almost unanimously agreed that at next year's meeting of the committee a motion should be introduced permitting any American golfer whose United States golf association rating was six or less to enter for the championship.

Zbyszko Collapsed In Wrestling Bout

NEW YORK, May 29.—Stanislaus Zbyszko, the Polish wrestler, collapsed from weakness in his bout with George Lurich, of Russia, after sixteen minutes and twenty-one seconds of wrestling at Madison Square Garden last night. The Pole entered the ring with his head swathed in bandages, as the result of an injury received in his match with Constant Lemarin, at Montreal, last Saturday night. After a minute's wrestling, the bandages came off, showing a wound over the left temple.

Yalek Zbyszko, his brother, threw Paul Samson, of Germany, with a body hold, in 34 minutes.

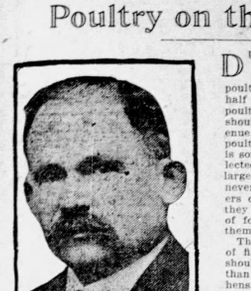
POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

Poultry on the Farm



DURING the past two years the average farmer has paid more attention to their poultry than ever before, but not half as much attention is paid to poultry on the average farm as should be. The per cent of revenue that can be derived from the poultry output of the average farm is something that is too much neglected and overlooked, and it is largely because these matters have never been explained to the farmers or they show a way by which they could produce a splendid flock of fowls and derive revenue from them every day in the year.

There is not a farm in Georgia of fifty or one hundred acres but should have their flock of not less than two hundred to five hundred hens. They could be kept in one comfortable building that would not cost much, and if they were properly cared for they could bring in a revenue from $50 to $75 each month during the entire year for eggs alone. When sufficient food is produced on the average farm of the country this will be done, and I suppose not until then will we ever see the farms of the south stocked with poultry and live stock. If every farmer in Georgia had from two to fifteen acres of alfalfa they would not hesitate to keep from two hundred to five hundred laying hens as they can be fed almost exclusively off of a few acres of alfalfa, and such results as cannot be obtained by any other feed can be had if a sufficient quantity of this food is grown on the average farm. Every farmer should make it a rule to sell from $50 to $100 worth of eggs from his place every month, and if this was done they would not have to be so dependent on planting a large crop of cotton. One of the great drawbacks now with the average farm is that they do not have a daily income to bring cash every day and too much dependence on the one crop cotton to buy the average supplies is what has kept the southern farmer in debt.

In traveling over the country we see but few chickens compared to what ought to be on the average farm, and as I said before, one of the reasons for this is the scarcity of food. The food proposition has kept the poultry and live stock industry down more than any other one thing connected with this work, and just so long as we depend on the west for our feed we will always have a scarcity of food and the farmers' heads the same as this year has brought about. It is certainly an outrage that this country should buy $37,000,000 more food supplies than our monied crop cotton brings revenue to pay for, and as long as we continue to keep up this state of affairs? Poultry and live stock could so easily change matters. It must come sooner or later, and the armer who starts even in a small way will almost before he knows it find himself independent and having a revenue at the end of the year that they do not have.

In many sections of the country where interest and enthusiasm is continually kept up with the poultry work there is a steady stream of money brought into this section every day from the large eastern cities and in every one of these sections poultry and eggs can be found. Just so long as there is a daily market with cash on hand to pay for such products that can be produced at such a profitable price it is surprising that more of this work is not done than is. This state could not spend any money more profitably than to have fifty to a hundred poultry experts at work continually in every county showing the people how to construct comfortable and cheap poultry houses, telling them how to raise their poultry food cheaply and produce both eggs and fowls that would be worth millions of dollors to Georgia and I do not believe any money could be spent more profitably. Let the state put out a lot of poultry experts and see how soon things will change.

Yours very truly,

Tony Lee Brown

QUESTIONS ASKED AND ANSWERED.

QUESTION.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.

I am a constant reader of your interesting articles in The Journal and I wish you would ask you a few questions about Indian Runner ducks.

1. Is it true that when one gets "broody" and wants to set, that she must be very old?

2. Are eggs that have been tested out of an incubator and found infertile, yet not decomposed, good to add to the mash for laying ducks? If so, to what extent, if any, will they take the place of meat scraps?

3. Is a very slight tint of green in the black of the penciled drake a sure sign of impurity of the breed?

4. Will a drake whose mother laid an egg of slightly greenish tint be very apt to produce offspring like self, lay the same colored egg if mated to ducks which lay pure white eggs?

5. Does the "depluming mite" ever attack either young or old ducks? I have one or two grown ducks that have been bald on neck and head for four or five months, and some five weeks old that have bare spots. They have no lice on them that are visible.

I will greatly appreciate this information and thank you.

W. L. D.

ANSWER.

The cause of the duck setting has nothing whatever to do with her age. Often a young duck will set. They usually make good mothers when they wish to set and I usually let them do so.

Infertile eggs are all right to boil and use with a mash for the ducks. They take place of animal food or meat scraps.

The green in the bill of the drake is no indication of impurity. In fact, many of them have this and it is admissible.

It is most likely a large per cent of the offspring from the white egg ducks and the one-half white egg drake would be mostly white. However, there will always be more or less doubt about the eggs.

The trouble with the feathers coming off of your ducks is not from depluming mites. The drakes have caused the feathers to come off of the ducks. You will not find this the case with the drakes. Your ducks should be fed more meat, also in a solution of some of the dips advertised in The Journal. This will kill all of the lice and mites and should be done at this time of the year. The young ducks not getting enough meat feather slowly; add more meat and feathers will come.

I am enclosing you my little book on ducks, which I hope will give you some information.

QUESTION.

Cullman, Ala.

You will please tell me what is the trouble with my roosters. I have three Plymouth Rock roosters all have a disease that is taking the feathers off in spots, leaving the skin almost as red as blood. They are otherwise in perfect condition except this trouble. Please tell me what is the trouble and what to do for them.

A. M.

ANSWER.

You are evidently feeding too much corn to your roosters. They do not get a variety of feed. It has caused something similar to pellagra or a skin disease among them. You should change their feed and not give any corn at all until they are well. Boiled oats or wheat is just as cheap and far better. Your chickens should be dipped in a solution of some of the dips as advertised in The Journal, every three weeks until they are well.

Be Comfortable

Like a weight lifted from your chest or pebbles shaken from your shoes will be your relief if your change from disagreeable surroundings to one of the many nice rooms advertised on this page of today's Journal.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Probable That Work Will Be Started on Building for Commission Houses at Central Avenue and Hunter Street, and the Building to Cost Between $60,000 and $80,000—Several New Transfers Recorded—Washington Street Sale and Resale

It is probable that work will be started shortly on the building which will house about sixteen South Broad street commission houses north of Hunter street and between Central avenue and Washington street.

At the Georgia railroad offices it was said Thursday that it couldn't be stated exactly when the work will be started, but it was thought that it would be shortly. President Scott, of the road, will be in Atlanta Friday and may have some developments to announce.

The building will cost between $60,000 and $80,000 and will be about 400 feet long. The commission houses have signed the leases and the ground has been cleared of old buildings and the excavation made.

TRANSFERS RECORDED.

Quite a large amount of new business is going to record from day to day.

Probably an average of ten deeds for title are recorded a day. As a good many sales are not recorded, it follows that a considerable amount of real estate business of medium-sized considerations is being done.

One agent remarked that a good many owners are holding back on what they have on hand and are getting it in shape to put on the market later on.

WASHINGTON STREET SALE.

One sale that went to record on Thursday was of a Washington street residence of which there was a re-sale also.

Mrs. Carrie Mayer sold to E. W. Bingham property on the west side of the street 72 feet south of Bass street, the lot being 50x190, for $8,125.

Mr. Bingham has resold the property to D. H. Strauss for a consideration that does not appear in the record.

(By Associated Press.)

WILLIAM J. BRYAN CANCELS HIS ATLANTA ENGAGEMENT

Secretary of State Not Able to Come South for Speeches Planned

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Secretary of State Bryan today cancelled all his southern speaking engagements, which included Atlanta on the night of June 2. He informed Congressman Howard that the press of official business was such that it would be impossible for him to leave Washington. Besides Atlanta Mr. Bryan was to have made speeches at Ashburn and at Opelika, Ala., and Starkeville, Miss.

Dr. K. G. Matheson, president of the Georgia School of Technology, learned first of the decision of Mr. Bryan through a telephone message to his residence from The Journal.

"I am very much surprised and disappointed," said Dr. Matheson, "but it cannot be helped. That part of the exercises will, of course, have to be cancelled."

The secretary of state was to have addressed the students and alumni of Georgia Tech at the Grand opera house on June 2 following a "grape juice" dinner that was to have been tendered him at the Capital City club by Walter P. Andrews.

A man living at Auburn, New York, and a severe attack of kidney and bladder trouble. Being a working man, not wanting to lose time, nor run up a doctor bill, he tried himself completely by using Foley Kidney Pills. A year later he says: "It is a pleasure to report that the cure was permanent." He has had no return whatever of the pain, backache and burning. His name is J. A. Farmer, and he says: "I of course I recommend Foley Kidneys Pills as a very effective cure for kidney and bladder trouble." For sale by all dealers.—(Advt.)

JAP LEADERS CONFER WITH OLD STATESMAN

Prince Taro Katsura and Others Called in on California Land Squabble

(By Associated Press.)

TOKYO, May 29.—Because of the growing attacks by the opposition, the Japanese government has called the two elder statesmen and other leaders including Prince Taro Katsura, former premier, into conference on the California question, and submitted to them the text of America's reply to Japan's protest against the California alien land ownership legislation.

The text of the reply sent by Washington emphasizes that the question at issue is international and not political one. It points out that the state of California insists that there has been no violation of the American-Japanese treaty.

After lengthily dwelling on the friendship of the United States for Japan, the reply concludes that the courts of law are open and expresses the hope that the question may be solved in a manner satisfactory to Japan.

POLICE NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR PARADE DISORDERS

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Superintendent Sylvester and the Washington police are absolved from blame for the disorders which attended the big woman suffrage pageant here on March 3, in the report of the senate committee which investigated the affair, presented to the senate today.

The committee found that those of the uniformed and some special policemen acted with apparent indifference, and made little attempt to check the crowds, but the whole force should not be discredited.

Chief Sylvester was exonerated of "hostility" to the suffragists.

1,000 SOULS RESCUED FROM FOUNDERED LINER

(By Associated Press.)

QUEENSTOWN, May 29.—The government and other vessels sent the Haverford at about 6 o'clock this evening. She had struck on the rocks off Cork harbor and was apparently not on the Daunt rock as had been supposed. The passengers are being taken off.

She is believed to have about 1,000 passengers, of whom 150 are second class and the remainder steerage.

The Haverford took a large number of members on board at Liverpool for Philadelphia.

The sea is smooth but the shore along this coast is very rocky. The fog continues dense.

Two tugs which left the Haverford with 700 passengers on board reached Queenstown in safety this evening. The Hellespont and another tug are still alongside the liner, so there is little doubt that all the passengers and crew will be saved.

DETECTIVES SEEK CORROBORATION OF CONLEY'S STORY

observe these incidents, the detectives assert.

That portion of Conley's latest statement which the detectives so far have been unable to corroborate, and in which the negro's declarations directly conflict with the testimony of inquest witnesses concerns his alleged visit to Superintendent Frank's office on the day of the murder.

OBSERVED TIME—12:56.

Conley swears that, after remaining in hiding on the first floor just back of the stairs for nearly two hours, he was summoned upstairs to the office by Mr. Frank, who whistled for him to come up, that, as he passed the clock on the way to the office with Mr. Frank, who had him by the arm, he noticed it was exactly four minutes to 1 o'clock; that no one was in either the outer or inner office at the time; that almost immediately after he and Mr. Frank had arrived in the office and the latter had closed the doors leading into both offices, footsteps were heard, and Mr. Frank bundled him into a wardrobe in the inner office and went out and conversed with two ladies who, Mr. Frank told Conley, were Miss Corinthia Hall and Mrs. Emma Freeman, employes; that he overheard the conversation between Mr. Frank and these ladies, and that Mrs. Freeman said she had come for her coat, which she had left in a dressing room upstairs.

THEN HE WROTE NOTES.

Conley swore that when these ladies left the office, which was within a minute or two after they arrived, Mr. Frank followed them out and was gone for about a minute, after which he returned and closing the doors of the office let him (Conley) out of the wardrobe and dictated the two notes to him, saying he wanted a sample of his handwriting; that Mr. Frank was very much excited at the time; that he kept running his hands through his hair and remarking in an undertone, suicide, to himself. "Why should I hang when I have got rich relatives," that after the ladies were written Mr. Frank pulled out a cigarette box and handed it to him; that when he opened the box he found it contained $2.50; that he called Mr. Frank's attention to this and the latter told him to keep it, saying: "You are a good boy. I am going to send these notes to my mother in Brooklyn, N. Y., who is rich and who will probably send you something."

According to Conley's second affidavit, he then was escorted to the stairs by Mr. Frank, he walked on down and out the front door and to a nearby nearbeer saloon where he drank some beer, it being about 1:30 o'clock when he reached the saloon.

Mr. Frank, in his statement to the coroner's jury, testified that he left the factory to go to lunch about 11 o'clock, after having warned Arthur White, Henry Denham, machinists at work on the third floor, and Mrs. White, who was up there with them at the time, that he was going and intended to lock the front door, and if any of them desired to leave they had better do so. Mr. Frank said Mrs. White came down and went away.

In her testimony at the inquest Miss Corinthia Hall, one of the young ladies the negro Conley swears came into the office while he was in hiding in the wardrobe, stated that she and Mrs. Freeman left the factory about 11:45 on the day of the murder, that they were there but a few moments; that when they arrived Mr. Frank was standing in the office door and that a stenographer and Mrs. White were inside the office; that when she and Mrs. Freeman went upstairs to get the latter's cloak Mr. Frank called after her to tell Mr. White that his wife was downstairs awaiting him; that she delivered the message and Mr. White came downstairs to see his wife, that up on the third floor she found Mrs. Mae Barrett and Messrs. White and Denham.

Conley swears in his second affidavit that Mrs. Barrett came downstairs before he was called up to the office; that she wore a certain kind of dress and that she stopped just inside the street entrance to remove some money from a pay envelope which she transferred to her handbag.

SEEK CORROBORATION.

Thursday morning the detectives planned to obtain affidavits from Miss Hall and Mrs. Freeman concerning the conversation which they held with Mr. Frank in his office on the day of the murder. This was done with a view to corroborating, if possible, what the negro Conley says he overheard.

The detectives took the position that if these ladies corroborated Conley's account of what transhpired then that there could be no doubt that he was hidden in the office as he claims to have been. Such corroboration they feel would establish the truth of Conley's statement.

After reviewing the evidence given by Miss Hall at the inquest the detectives Thursday afternoon admitted they were somewhat puzzled concerning the discrepancies in time as stated by Conley and Miss Hall. They offer no explanation of the further discrepancy in the statements of the two as regards the presence in the office of Mrs. White and the stenographer during the visit there of Miss Hall and Mrs. Freeman.

Discussing the case Thursday morning Detective Chief Lanford declared that he was investigating every possible theory and every phase of the evidence presented. He said he was not shutting his eyes to any fact, but was earnestly endeavoring to establish the truth or falsity of every conclusion reached.

"I am not trying to make a murderer," he said. "I am doing my best to clear up a murder mystery and to establish beyond the question of doubt the guilt of the person who committed the murder."

Police Chief Beavers also declared that the investigation was not being conducted with a view to fixing responsibility on some particular individual. "What we desire to do is convict the real murderer, be he white or black," said the chief.

Notwithstanding the apparent discrepancies in the negro Conley's affidavit as compared to the testimony of the inquest witnesses the detectives are not included to change their theory. They will, it is said, during Thursday afternoon put Conley through another interrogation with a view to clearing up the weak points in his statement, and while doing so the detectives will, it is said, make another effort to ascertain if Conley knows more about the murder than he has heretofore admitted.

THEORY OF FACTORY EMPLOYES.

At variance with the theory of the detectives is the theory of practically all of the employes of the National Pencil factory, who have always maintained that Superintendent Leo M. Frank is innocent.

The factory employes charge the crime now to the negro Conley.

THEORY OF CRIME.

To a Journal reporter three officials of the place, Assistant Superintendent Herbert G. Schiff, E. F. Holloway, timekeeper, and N. V. Darley, general foreman, outlined their very plausible theory of the crime.

"The fact that Conley was in the building for several hours on the fatal Saturday must be granted," said Mr. Schiff. "He told how Mr. Holloway came down the steps and went to the front of the building during the morning to talk with a peg-legged negro employed by a certain glass company. Mr. Holloway, who did not see Conley, but who says that he might easily have missed him in the darkness of the first floor, corroborates the statement that he talked to the peg-legged negro.

"Conley told just how Miss Mattie Smith came up to the office and how she came down, talking to Mr. Darley about her sick father and the mistake in her pay envelope, and how he told her that he would fix it up all right next week.

"All of this is corroborated by both Mr. Darley and Miss Smith. Conley has described the dress of Miss Smith and she says the description is correct.

"Now, the theory of the crime we entertain is simply this: Conley came in, following Miss Smith, and expected to rob her as she came down with her money.

"When Mr. Darley happened to come with her, Conley gave up his attempt, but continued to wait there in the darkness.

"Later he saw little Mary Phagan come in and waited until she came down.

"Then he grabbed her and tried to get her purse. A scuffle by the elevator ensued and the negro knocked the girl down the elevator shaft.

"He quickly followed her, going down by the trap door. He found her cut and bruised and unconscious. Then he tied the cord around her neck and choked her to death. He wrote the notes himself, and then he pulled the staple off the rear basement door and left the place.

"Now, the double doors at the head of the second floor were locked, and Mr. Frank could have easily remained in his office without hearing screams or noise of a scuffle.

UNREASONABLE, HE SAYS.

"It is unreasonable to suppose that an intelligent white man would have called in the negro and dictated those notes to him. Mr. Frank has been in the south a few years and does not know enough about negroes to dictate notes characteristic of the race.

"In addition, why would any intelligent white man try to write two notes to throw pursuers off the track when one would do just as well?

"Further, the negro says in his statement to the detectives that Mr. Frank said, 'Oh, why should I hang; why should I hang?'

"Would any man of Mr. Frank's intelligence and education, even under stress of excitement, make such a statement to a negro?"

Mr. Schiff points out that Mary Phagan's purse and her pay envelope have never been found, and declares that this fact adds to the plausibleness of the robbery motive.

DIDN'T SEE MARY PHAGAN.

Another "disturbing statement" in the Phagan case has been eliminated by Detectives Starnes and Campbell.

Some time ago Mrs. A. A. Smith, of 198 West Peachtree street, wrote to the newspapers and the police that on the Monday following the crime she heard three women talking on the street of the tragedy, and that one of them remarked that she saw Mary Phagan at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the tragedy.

The lady who, Mrs. Smith says, was doing the talking, has been located. She is the mother of G. W. Epps, the little boy who came to town with Mary Phagan on the day of the tragedy.

Mrs. Epps dressed in the same clothes she was wearing when Mrs. Smith saw her on the streets, and both are satisfied that it was Mrs. Epps' conversation which Mrs. Smith overheard. Mrs. Epps says, however, that Mrs. Smith misunderstood her and that she did not see Mary Phagan on the afternoon of the tragedy.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Representative Broussard, of Louisiana, and R. H. Dowman, of New Orleans, talked with President Wilson about regulation of the Mississippi river. He presented a resolution of a recent mass meeting in New Orleans asking the federal government to take charge of the entire Mississippi river system for regulation and flood prevention.

The great calamity in Omaha was quickly overshadowed by the terribly disastrous floods in Ohio. Great suffering and sickness from colds and exposure resulted which Foley's Honey and Tar Compound helped to alleviate. L. Poole, 2217 California St., Omaha, writes: "My daughter had a severe cough and cold but Foley's Honey and Tar Compound knocked it out in no time. My wife would not keep house without it. We have used it for years, always with good results." For sale by all dealers.—(Advt.)
